CHEKIANG GENERALS FLEE TO JAPAN; WAR ENDS

WU PEI-FU ARRIVES IN SHANHAIKWAN; INSPECTS GRIAT WALL CONDITIONS

Chihli Regains Chiumenkow After Wu Replenished Army With Fresh Troops; Naval Attack On Fengtien Front Planned; Part Of Shanhaikwan Still In Hands Of Chihli Army

(Intern News Agency)

Tientsin, Oct. 13.—Immediately after his arrival at the Shanhaikwan front, Marshal Wu Pei-fu proceeded to inspect the condition of war along the Great Wall.

(Intern News Agency)

Pekin, Oct. 11—Just before the special military train with Marshal Wu Pei-fu aboard passed through Tientsin station this morning a certain Russian discovered that a bomb, which was operated by electricity, had been placed on the railway and thus Marshal Wu was enabled to have a narrow escape.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Mukden, Oct. 11.—The rumor that Fag Yu-jung, Commander of the 3th Mixed Brigade of the Chihli troops, was killed in the recent battle at Shihmensai is being only circulated here.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Pekin, Oct. 12.—A crude attempt to blow up Marshal Wu Pei-fu's train was made yesterday morning at five o'clock beyond Tientsin where two galvanised tins, slightly larger than kerosene tins, were placed on the line.

General Chien Ping-chien's train which left Peking at midnight apparently struck and partly pushed one tin, from which spilled out a white powder, said to be a high explosive, but the detonator was untouched.

Two Russian railway workers who found the infernal machines have been detained pending enquiry.

It appears that both the tins were brushed off by cow-catchers and replaced, but discovered prior to the arrival of Marshal Wu's train. If the attempt had come off according to plan, it would probably have only injured the engine.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, Oct. 12.—Marshal Wu Pei-fu, Generalissimo of the Chihli troops, and party arrived at Shanhaikwan this morning at 6 o'clock.

(Eastern News Agency)

Mukden, Oct. 12.—Early yesterday morning, the Fengtien troops once again attacked Shihmensai and the Chihli forces responded to the attack with might and main. The opposing troops are now fighting furiously. The Fengtien military authorities for the last few days have commandeered some 10,000 war-coolies and are despatching them to the fighting fronts.

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, Oct. 12.—It is reported in Chinese circles here that the Chihli troops have since completed their offensive despositions in the sector of Chiumenkow and that yesterday they made a furious attack upon the Fengtien troops in the above sector and regained Chiumenkow in the evening.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tientsin, Oct. 12.—There was no further development yesterday in the Shanhaikwan sector, excepting a fierce attack by the Fengtien troops at Shanhaikwan station. Marshal Wu Pei-fu, who has reached the Shanhaikwan front, has replenished the Chihli forces, which have suffered many casualties with his highly trained troops and has at the same time despatched several artillery companies to strengthen the defences in the sector of Shiaoshansu. No less than 20 transport-vessels have been concentrated off Taku and the Chihli troops are now making preparations to attack from the sea the position of the Fengtien forces at the Shanhaikwan front.

UNLUCKY DAYS!

For many years it has been forecasted that when the ancient Thunder Peak Pagoda fell, important things would happen to the Chinese Government. Well, old Thunder Peak Pagoda, for centuries a landmark in Hangchow, tumbled into a mass of brick on September 25, the day General Sun Chuan-fang entered that city from Fukien Province.

And now to add to the achievements of the God of Luck, at least as far as General Lu is concerned, he chose the thirteenth day of October of the Thirteenth Year of the Republic to make his exit from Shanghai.

ARMISTICE SOLE TOPIC ALONG THE KIANGSU FRONT

Sun Chuan-fang Ordered To Return To Hangchow By Peking, Report

BY MILES A. GOLDRICK

Quinsan, Oct. 12.—The impending armistice is the sole topic of conversation wherever one goes along the Kiangsu front in this vicinity these days. No one is able to fathom what it all means but undoubtedly something is in the wind which none but the powers that be know about. Naturally there is a feeling of uncertainty which is being felt by the troops as well as by the under officers.

On October 11 the town of Taitsang was retaken by the Chekiang forces, according to report here. The Kiangsu headquarters deny this but do admit a short retreat in this sector and from the frequency and similarity of reports by soldiers the Chekiang troops have at least made a big advance. The opportunity came when a regiment holding the line, about four miles from Taichung, mutinied and in the resulting excitement the Chekiang troops broke through. They were checked after a sharp fight.

General Sun and his troops have been ordered to return to Hangchow by Peking. Due to reverses in the north the troops are being diverted in that direction and put under the general command of Wu Pei-fu. Many soldiers that have not yet been ordered to entrain are lamenting their luck in having to spend their time in enforced idleness. There are so many men in the Huangtu sector that only a small percentage are used in the trenches and the remainder spend their time doing nothing. They are not allowed to go to Soochow any more when they feel the urge and are kept in the area east of Quinsan. Formerly, the men used to pile on the trains to the point of suffocation and ride to Soochow for an evening's fun. Now they cannot go without a pass and then they are searched, due to their propensity for picking up valuable articles or revolvers and selling them to the natives.

10 KILLED AS VOLUNTEERS CLASH WITH 'RED ARMY'

Department Stores And Banks Are Closed

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, Oct. 11.—A new merchants' strike began on Friday. All the department stores and banks are closed.

There was an hour's fighting on Friday afternoon on the Bund. The Merchant Volunteers were unloading their arms and ammunition when the Labor Volunteers, the so-called Red Army, interfered. The casualties numbered 10.

The Merchant Volunteers are today strongly in evidence in the western part of the city.

RECEPTION AT YAMEN

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, Oct. 11.—There was a reception at the Governor's yamen on Friday at which all the Consuls were present, including the new Russian Consul and four officers from the Soviet ship Vorovsky.

Dr. C. C. Wu in a speech appealed to the Powers to preserve strict and scrupulous neutrality in the present crisis.

The guests toasted the Republic, to which Dr. Sun Yat-sen responded. The Senior Consul also spoke.

Dr. Ma Soo, addressing the students of the Kwangtung Government University, appealed to the Powers to refuse Marshal Wu Pei-fu the Customs surplus and advocated that the local authorities declare Canton a free port.

German Zeppelin Leaves For United States Amidst Demonstration

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Oct. 12.—The ZR3 is over the Atlantic Ocean. The trip so far has been very satisfactory.

The Zeppelin wirelesses that she was over Cape Ortegal near Corunna at 8:36 this evening. She is flying at an estimated average speed of 80 miles an hour.

Hitherto the engines have been working splendidly, and it is now expected that the flight will be accomplished inside 70 hours.

(Reuter's Service)

Friedrichshafen, Oct. 12.—Enormous crowds wildly cheered and sang Deutschland Ueber Alles on the occasion of the departure of the ZR3 for Lakehurst, New Jersey. The airship is expected to reach her destination in 80 hours.

The handing over of the zeppelin to America is bitterly regretted in many quarters in Germany. A student, said to be insane, was arrested yesterday for being in possession of a carbine and ammunition with which, it is alleged, he intended to shoot the commander of the zeppelin in order to prevent her departure.

Bale, Oct. 12.—The ZR3 passed here at 8.10 this morning. A dense fog made it impossible exactly to observe her direction.

Bordeaux, Oct. 12.—The wireless station here at 3 this afternoon picked up signals from the ZR3 stating that she was passing over the mouth of the Gironde. The airship did not indicate her direction.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 11.—According to a report received from Berlin the airship ZR3 has started from Friedrichshafen en route to the United States, and is proceeding to Belfort, from which place it

Chekiang Soldiers Seek To 'Go Over' At Huangtu; Fight On Beyond Lunghua

Lower Officers Keep Discipline Of Troops Following Desertion Of Generals Which May Save Woman's Life

BY TALBOT PATRICK

12:30 a.m. Oct. 14.—The military situation:—

Kiating and Liuho are being evacuated by troops heading toward Shanghai. Seven hundred men, some in uniform and some having discarded their uniforms or put them under other clothing and most with baggage, arrived at the North station from Nanziang yesterday and were distributed to Lunghua, Woosung, Chapei headquarters and where their own sweet fancy took them in Chapei.

Forty-eight freight cars jammed with troops from Huangtu were stopped at Chenju, fifteen minutes run outside the North station, and held there from a quarter before 9 o'clock last night on by a captain in command at that way station.

Delegates for the troops of the Huangtu-Kiating-Liuho front were spurned when they offered yesterday morning to join the army of General Chi if each man were paid two months' wages and the above results followed.

On the front across the railway toward Sungkiang, the troops retreated several miles over the week-end and were digging in strong positions yesterday when an armistice was unexpectedly arranged late yesterday afternoon. Firing was still going on after dark, while word of the armistice was being sent away from the rail line.

On this front, as the other, and as at important places behind the lines, number 2 or 3 or 10 men were "carrying on" after their superiors had fled, were keeping discipline among men and seeing that food supplies were distributed, etc.

Word of the flight of Marshal Lu and General Ho, as well as of demoralisation of troops on the Huangtu front was declared "nonsense" by a few soldiers who overheard railwaymen discussing affairs last night at Hsin Chuang, the station which was Chekiang headquarters against the Fukien troops.

Further on, less than fifteen miles from Shanghai, the Chekiang infantrymen had dug through the day a series of intrenchments which started as isolated rifle pits and were fast developing into a complete series of connecting trenches roofed over for protection against shrapnel fire. Behind them a short way, a battery of field guns and two of mountain guns strengthened the line, while four anti-aircraft guns and twelve machine guns were up with the thin covering force of infantry protecting the intrenchers.

Through these lines Fung Shi-wong, [illegible] aide-de-camp, passed [illegible] about 3.15 in the afternoon. He waited [illegible] the left side of the railway [illegible] headquarters while on the [illegible] waving a dirtied white handkerchief tied on the end of Wong's

British Parties Issue Manifestoes On Election; Labor Claims Achievement

Conservatives To Cure Unemployment; Liberals Plan For Social Legislature Benefit; Communists Rap Dawes Plan

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 11.—The Labor manifesto begins: "The Labor Government, defeated in the House of Commons by a partisan combination of Liberals and Tories, appeals to the people."

It dwells at the outset on the Labor Government's achievement in the direction of securing the peace of nations and of the restoration of industry and commerce. It declares that it has maintained and even strengthened the ties of sentiment with the Dominions, on which, rather than upon either force or any Imperialism, the very existence of the British commonwealth of nations depends. It says that the embittered relations between France and Germany due to the disastrous tangles of preceding Governments have been improved, cordial relations between Britain and France have been established and important steps have been taken at Geneva towards arbitration, security and general disarmament. "The Labor Government refused to exclude from this general pacification the Russian people, with whom it is essential to resume trade in the interests of the unemployed and of the country as a whole." "Will you allow this work for peace and prosperity to be stopped?"

The manifesto dwells on Labor's "great housing charter," the execution of which is dependent on the result of the election. It claims marked success in finance and declares that the Liberal and Conservative fear of a second Labor Budget is responsible for the election. It refers to its drastic changes in education policy and its help to agriculture and the improvement of the condition of agricultural laborers. It details at length its measures to relieve unemployment by "a constructive policy" of national development together with the restoration, through pacification, of the production and trade of other nations". All the Labor Government's bills are before the Parliament now summarily ended.

It mentions the measures contemplated for the next twelve months, including reorganisation of mining and industry on lines of national ownership, drastic dealing with the Poor Law system, taxation of land values and a national electricity system with the primary object of providing cheap power for industry instead of a profit to shareholders; as well as a full and impartial enquiry into the administration of the licensing laws by a Royal Commission, systematic reorganisation of the whole system of transport, including national ownership of railways and canals; prevention of profiteering, not merely in building materials but in foodstuffs; conjunction of a system of bulk importation and systematic distribution under arrangements converted with the Dominions and other Governments, substantial improvement of the Workmen's Compensation Acts, and prevention of excessive hours of labor in occupations, including women's, omitted from the Washington Convention.

The manifesto concludes with a special word to women and an appeal to the people to support "Labor's steadfast march towards the transformation of the existing economic industrial system with a genuine Socialist Commonwealth."

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 11.—The Liberal election manifesto, which is signed by Mr. Asquith and Mr. Lloyd George, advocates peace, social reform and national development. It emphasises the desirability of Free Trade, urges extension and coordination of the insurance acts, and electoral reform: proposes State acquisition of mineral rights and coalfields, and State-aided establishment of super-power stations;

DOCK HERE IS STRIPPED OF ALL ARTICLES OF ANY VALUE

Materials Worth About $1,500,000 Are Taken

Probably the most stirring scenes incidental to the exodus of Chekiang officials from the Arsenal Sunday night and early yesterday morning took place at the Kiangnan Dock and Engineering Works, the Chinese Government shipyard located in the same compound and alongside the Arsenal.

The officials appointed by General Ho to administer the Government dockyard in place of Messrs. H. K. Kwong and K. S. Lew apparently acted on the old adage that "God helps those who help themselves," at least the last part of the phrase for when some foreign visitors arrived at the Dock at about seven o'clock yesterday morning the offices and works had been completely gutted even to the furniture and the locks and knobs on the doors of both the office building of the dockyard and the Admiralty building in the same compound. A bunch of coolies was busily engaged in trying to get a billiard table belonging to the officers' mess out of one of the doors but had to give up [illegible] owing to the size of the table.

It is impossible to estimate the [illegible] of the [illegible] but a conservative estimate would be Tls. 1,500,000 of valuable property which has disappeared in the last couple of days. Among the bulkier items are large stores of brass, copper and lead, fittings of various kinds for ship repair work, anchors, chains, large stocks of winter clothing held in the godowns for officers and men of the navy, and in all probability parts of valuable machines in the various machine shops. Whether similar looting of stores and machinery in the adjoining arsenal took place it was impossible to determine yesterday as foreigners were denied admission to these premises.

With possibly one or two exceptions the foreign firms having ships tied up at the Kiangnan Dock and Engineering Works were able on Sunday and yesterday to get their properties released, in some cases actually doing the work of releasing the ships themselves. The local agents of the American steamer, Chichuen, owned by the Yangtsze Rapid Transportation Company of Hankow made an arrangement with the new directors of the Dock to have the boat released yesterday morning and were on hand to receive the ship at seven a.m. but neither Messrs. Chao Chinghua nor P. Tsiang were on hand. A petty officer at the works offered to open the dock and release the ship if the money for the repairs was turned over to him, but before the negotiations could be conducted further, the petty officer got word that Generals Lu Yung-hsiang and Ho Feng-lin had decamped. Without waiting for further argument this man also disappeared without waiting for the money which he said he needed to cover his three months back pay.

Some of the foreign firms are understood to have also tried to get in touch with members of the local law firm of Roger and Husar who are reputed to have been appointed attorneys for the new regime at the Dockyard, but no member of this firm could either be reached or apparently had any desire to act for their new clients in view of the changed situation brought about by the sudden departure of General Ho Feng-lin and his superior General Lu. Other foreign firms including the Asiatic Petroleum Company and a French concern also had men at the dock yesterday morning looking after the release of their ships.

Yesterday afternoon the extensive buildings and grounds of the both the Kiangnan Dock and the Arsenal as well as the various office buildings and yamens were completely deserted with the ex-

QUIT AS SUBORDINATES REFUSE TO TAKE ORDERS AT WAR COUNCIL MEET

Lu Yung-hsiang, Ho Feng-lin, Chwang Tse-ping, Lu Yao-tung, Lu Yung-chien, Hsu Jen-tsing And Wang Ching-chen Among Political Refugees Who Sailed Yesterday

After 40 days of fighting with indecisive results, the Kiangsu-Chekiang war came to a sudden end yesterday as the Chekiang military leaders decided to surrender and quit the cause.

General Lu Yung-hsiang, main figure in the Kiangsu-Chekiang war and commander of the Chekiang-Shanghai Allied Forces, left for Japan on the Shanghai Maru yesterday morning, as a result of the refusal of his subordinates to take his orders.

With him on the same steamer were General Ho Feng-lin, Ex-Defence Commissioner of Shanghai and Sungkiang and second in command of the Chekiang-Shanghai Army; General Chwang Tse-ping, whose refuge in Chekiang was one of the principal causes of the present strife; Major-General Lu Yao-tung, son of General Lu; Colonel Lu Yung-chien, Chief of the Chinese Constabulary; Mr. Hsu Jen-tsing, director of the Chapei Public Works and General Wang Ching-chan, Chief of Staff of Gen. Ho.

A dissension at a meeting of the war council held on Sunday night was the cause of the sudden collapse of the Chekiang cause. At this gathering which was attended by all the commanders of the allied forces, General Lu is said to have suggested the transfer of certain forces of General Chen Yao-san, who had retreated from the Ishing front previously, from Huangtu to Sungkiang in view of the shortage of ammunition and troops. Here General Chen hesitated, it is reported. General Yang Hua-chao, who had done most of the fighting in the Liuho-Kiating sectors, questioned the advisability of the move and predicted that the order would not be respected.

The council dispersed unceremoniously and General Lu, realising that the subordinates had gone back on him, drafted a manifesto in which he reviewed his own efforts in trying to fighting for a worthy cause, but since he did not wish to see more bloodshed, he was willing to hand over the command of his army to someone more worthy of that task. He transferred the command of his own Tenth Division to Major General Chu Shen-kwan, whom Peking has previously appointed as his successor by a Presidential Mandate at the same time when Lu was outlawed. General Ho handed over his command to General Liu Yung-shen, former commander of the Shanghai Garrisons, and a close friend of Chen Yao-san and Gen. Chwang Tse-ping appointed a colonel, named Li, as his successor.

With the departure of Generals Lu and Ho yesterday, Shanghai was left without a military head and utmost tension was experienced in the local political atmosphere. Exchange of peace emissaries began early Sunday between some of the local military men and General Sun Chuan-fang, although General Ho was said to have engaged himself in a vigorous campaign at Hsin Chiao all day Sunday.

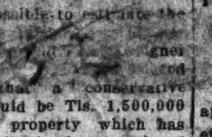
It will be probably some little time yet before the situation could be cleared up. The military men in Shanghai are by no means unanimous as to what course they would adopt next. A report was current yesterday that a number of them favored the support of General Hsu Shu-tseng (Little Hsu) for another desperate fight against Sun Chuan-fang and Chi Hsieh-yuan, but friends of the former Anfu general stated to THE CHINA PRESS that having enjoyed the peace and quiet of a gentleman of leisure for five years and without any force of arms at his command, it was extremely unlikely that he would cast in his lot with an army, whose morale is practically gone.

The departure of Colonel Lu Yung-chien threw the residents in Nantao and Chapei in panic. The constables in the streets were withdrawn and confined in barracks, while exodus poured into the settlement by the thousands.

Ningpo, Oct. 11.—Matters have taken a decided turn for the better here in Ningpo today. General Pan who had been playing both sides to see which side would make him the better offer has now resigned and Brig. General Ho takes command of

MR. S. T. WEN WILL BEGIN DUTIES OF FOREIGN ENVOY

Thinks Amnesty Will Be Given To [illegible] Troops



Mr. Wen Shih-tsun, recently appointed Commissioner of Foreign Affairs at Shanghai and concurrently Superintendent of Customs for this section by the Peking Government, will assume the duties of his office officially today and temporarily will function from the office of the Superintendent of Customs on Bubbling Well Road.

Mr. Wen made this statement to a representative of THE CHINA PRESS last night and in addition stated his belief that there will be no disorder in this area. Although Mr. Wen was not familiar at the time of the interview with the terms of the armistice which apparently has been under consideration for several days, he expressed his belief that amnesty will be granted to all of General Lu's troops even including the contingents from Fukien Province which entered Chekiang after being defeatd by General Sun Chun-faung and thereby precipitated the war in this area on September 3. Although speaking entirely unofficially and without knowledge of the armistice terms, Mr. Wen was of opinion that all of the troops which formerly served under Generals Lu and Ho would be incorporated into the Kiangsu division of the National Army and that the Fukien troops may be returned to their native province.

General Chi Hsieh-yuan, commander of the Kiangsu forces in the present war and Marshal of Kiangsu, Anhwei and Kiangsi and recently appointed Defence Commissioner of Shanghai and Woosung is expected in Shanghai without delay, according to Mr. Wen. When asked regarding the rumors which have been in circulation of possibly misunderstanding between General Chi Hsieh-yuan and General Sun Chun-faung, the latter now Tuchun of Chekiang Province, Mr. Wen dismissed this with a gesture. "Both of these men have been fighting Generals Lu and Ho for the large purpose of unifying China and it is foolish to think that they would fall out now that the major objective has been obtained," said Mr. Wen.

Mr. Wen for several days has been the only Northern official in the Shanghai district and has been living at the Kalee Hotel waiting receipt of his official credentials from the President's office which were delayed on account of the disrupted mail and telegraph services. The credentials however arrived on Sunday and Mr. Wen will take office tomorrow and will thus be in a position to deal with the Consular Body direct.

the First Division in his place. Ho and all of his under-officers are loyal to the provincial authorities. Defense Commissioner Wang and Police Commissioner Liu are also loyal to Hangchow. So now we have all of the military loyal to the provincial government, thus averting a clash in or near Ningpo as was feared by the people of the city. Brig. General Ho has requested the revolutionary leaders to leave Ningpo, and they have promised to do so today.

General Lu's manifesto announcing his retirement from active service follows:

"The Kiangsu-Chekiang War was precipitated by Chi Hsieh-yuan who had stirred the wrath of the public while Tsao Kun was the real culprit of the crime. The forces of the nation were mobilised and a clash ensued.

"I had previously issued declarations, desiring to co-operate with the people in working for the reconstruction of the country. Since the matter is one which did not concern any individual alone but the entire nation, I had resolved to fight for the great cause and trust that right would eventually win over might.

"Happily, strict discipline was observed by our subordinates and public opinion was in our favor. During the month of serious fighting, the enemy had no opportunity to break through.

"Realising that our front was impenetrable, the enemy concentrated the forces of several provinces to attack us on the side. On account of their number, they were threatening Sungkiang and Shanghai. Although the morale of our officers and men are still high, our ammunitions are exhausted. Great sacrifice has been made through the close fighting. We are moved by the sight of the terrible loss of human power; and have decided to abandon Sungkiang and Shanghai and to live in retirement.

"The suppression of traitors is a duty incumbent upon all citizens. We have not been behind in our attempt to save the nation, but success of the combat need not be ours. So we have this day abundoned our military power and await the trial before the tribunal of public opinion.

"We have handed over the command of our troops to the competent authorities who will be wholly responsible for the maintenance of peace and order so as to terminate our duties in a natural way.

"While regretting that our feeble efforts have not been fruitful of the desired results, we trust that our friendly forces will join with the patriots of the nation and continue the worthy struggle until the national traitors are ousted and the general situation settled. Then we shall be glorified even when we are but plebians living in retirement."

CHAMBER MEETS

At a full meeting of the directors of the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce and the Nantao Chamber of Commerce, the following telegram was despatched to General Chi Hsieh-yuan and General Sun Chuan-fang:

"Civil war, which has ravaged Shanghai and its vicinity, has continued for 40 days, involving four different provinces. We have read the circular telegram issued by General Lu, who is now abandoning the districts of Sungkiang and Shanghai and living in retirement.

"Shanghai being a commercial center, peace and order should be strictly maintained. Therefore we ask you to order your troops to cease hostilities at once and at the same time formulate plans for the rehabilitation of the people."

Mr. Yu Yah-ching, president of the chamber, presided and made a report on the political situation, culminating in the departure of General Lu and General Ho, the strong stand taken by General Yang Hua-chao, who was ready to fight to bitter end and the offer made by General Chi Hsieh-yuan through one Mr. Wang Tien-wen to the chamber to mediate between the Tuchun of Kiangsu and the ex-Fukien general. Mr. Yu then asked the chamber to decide whether the matter should be considered.

After a lengthy discussion, at which a general condemnation of militarism was voiced, the chamber decided not to take any official action in the matter, but asked Mr. Yu to use his discretion to make use of "his good offices to bring the conflict to a satisfactory conclusion."

Mr. Yao Tse-ju, chairman of the Nantao chamber, reported on the attitude of the Nantao and Chapei police, who were desirous of maintaining the peace of the districts till a new Chief is appointed to succeed Colonel Lu Yung-chien. Meanwhile, the Chief of the General Affairs Department will be in charge of the office, in accordance with a decision reached at a conference of high officers in the afternoon, Mr. Yao said.

Here it was pointed out that this was the best time for the disarming of superfluous soldiery in the vicinity of Shanghai, which should remain as a purely commercial port. Instead of a military governor, it was pointed out, a director of commercial port, to look after the trade developments, should be elected.

All possible steps should be taken, it was suggested, to scrap the arsenal and the Woosung Forts and to confine the activities of the Kiangnan Arsenal and Dockyard to shipbuilding and repairing alone. The members believed that it was high time to advocate this move as well as the organisation of a model volunteer corps similar to the one in the International Settlement.

The chamber would help in disarming the retreating soldiers, it was intimated, and pay them off. But until an assurance had come from either Sun Chuan-fang or Chi Hsieh-yuan that there was to be no further fighting, the meeting considered all efforts at disarmament and peace as futile.

Correspondent Visits Points Of Interest

BY H. J. LEWIS

Lunghwa Arsenal, 12:30 p.m. October 13.—When I arrived at the Lunghwa Arsenal the customary courtesy cup of tea was noticeable by its absence. No one was allowed further than the front gate. The officer in charge stated that both Lu and Ho and other high officials had left for parts unknown. From the apparent signs of general upheaval there could hardly be any mistake that they had left.

At the Kiangwan Arsenal, at 1:15 this afternoon the same question as to the whereabouts of Tupan Lu brought forth the response that he had suddenly left for parts unknown. The American steamer Chi Chuen belonging to the Yangtze Rapid Transit Co. was being taken out of the Kiangwan Dock as well as a small launch belonging to the Asiatic Petroleum Co. The Fook Lai, a French up-river steamer and the American ocean going steamer Owego were still at the Dock.

From reports submitted by a competent foreign observer just in from Lootien a general retreat of the forces on this front toward Chapei was in progress.

At the Shanghai North Station, automobiles at Mex. $150 each, motorcycles for Mex. $30, and flour at Mex. $1.00 a sack were the market prices today for these commodities and apparently a rushing trade was done. In a conversation with railroad officials I was informed that although bridge 24 just beyond Huangtu was not seriously damaged still owing to the necessity of testing the track, putting rolling stock into fit condition for ordinary traffic that it would take from 3 to 4 days even though the troops left the railway before trains could be run through to Soochow. Several wounded were brought in from Malu and in addition two field pieces and about 500 men from Minghong after first being sent to Lunghwa Arsenal were sent to the Shanghai North Station and after the usual conference the troop train was ordered sent to Woosung. At seven p.m. a report was received that a train of 35 cars with 2 engines had left Nanziang for the Shanghai North Station. Col. Sung who arrived on the scene to take Col. Wang's place as in charge of military operations at Shanghai North Station issued instructions that these troops were not to be permitted to come to Shanghai and at 11:20 p.m. the last word was that the train was being held at Chenju, some five miles from Shanghai. It was quite definitely stated that the troops of the 24th Mixed Brigade were not to be allowed to proceed to Shanghai under any circumstances. The personnel of an army supply train which arrived from Nanziang about 8 stated that Nanziang had been bombed today by Kiangsu areoplanes and that three houses in the town had been destroyed.

ception of a few guards and servants who were still loitering about the district.

Messrs. Kwong and Lew and R. B. Mauchan, directors and Superintendent of the Dockyards, issued the following notice yesterday. "Referring to the Notice appearing over the signatures of Chao Ching-hua and P. Chiang in this paper on the 4th instant, we hereby state that the above concern has for a period of 20 years been a department of the Central Government operating under the control of the Board of Navy in Peking.

"We, the undersigned, are the Directors appointed in writing by the Central Government to administer this concern, and have functioned in this capacity for the last eight and eighteen years. We are the only persons thus authorised on behalf of the Dock to receive moneys, issue receipts and sign or settle outstanding or future contracts, receipts, cheques, vouchers, etc.

"On September 24, 1924, General Ho Feng-lin illegally seized the above dock, the property of the Central Government, and closed the gate against the whole of the foreign and Chinese staffs. All work at the dock has thus ceased.

"Since that date, large quantities of plant and materials have been removed by the parties now in control, who are even attempting to find purchasers for two of the steamers now under construction there.

"The public is hereby warned against negotiating for the purchase of the said streamers, plant and materials and are notified that we, the de jure Administration, decline to recognise any liabilities incurred since the said September 24, 1924, by those who have usurped the control of the dock."

stick. The latter had come direct from Shanghai to attempt to arrange an armistice. At 5:30 the policeman-orderly returned with information that the Fukien troops would not attack or fire unless the Chekiang soldiers indulged in shooting and word to that effect was started out through the dusk. Wong was to return in the morning; possibly, one thinks, after making tentative arrangements for more than an armistice.

Engines with one or two cars attached came up to Hsin Chuang, through the evening, but none went back until finally it was decided to return three wounded men and a score of telephone soldiers.

Just as the short train was about to pull out, a wild flurry of dashing forms across a flat car from the far platform showed that the wounded men were being used to cover the getaway of the colonel left in command of this sector, his staff and a hastily assembled bodyguard without the five hundred troops at the adjacent town knowing about it.

Five hundred troops from Minghong entrained late in the afternoon at Lunghua Junction. A stop at Jessfield looked to them like a heaven-sent opportunity to escape to the safe surroundings of a foreign settlement, until the stationmaster answered an inquiry as to the number of British marines stationed there by magnifying twenty more than a hundredfold. The five hundred climbed back into their cars, in and about which they peacefully slumbered last night at the North station.

Of the 20 motor cars used at the station for troop transport, five were auctioned off at 10:45 yesterday morning and the others sent back to garages to which they belonged. The confused situation was shown in the fact that ammunition shipments to Nanziang continued to the middle of the morning and that at 7:30 some mechanical workers were sent there.

General Chwang Tse-ping spent from 1:10 to 3:30 yesterday morning on a trip to Nanziang, apparently in an attempt to give his men warning in order that they might try to make terms.

Yesterday I saw an 83-year-old country woman, too sick to get herself food, who had not had any since her son was taken for an army coolie three days before. It seems queer to think that all this upsetting of the lives of thousands—tens of thousands—of people by the famous fights may be the saving of hers.

The "Mystery" of Stocks and Bonds

MANY people hesitate to invest their accumulations in stocks and bonds because they lack information. They feel, quite justly, that is hazardous to put their money into securities which they know little or nothing about.

THERE is no real mystery about stocks and bonds. But it is perfectly true that expert knowledge of them is not widespread. Developments must be followed closely, and the average person cannot do this.

IT is our business to watch financial matters. We are in position to help you choose wisely. We shall be glad to give you information about any stocks, bonds, or other investments, and to assist in their purchase.

There was considerable anxiety in Shanghai yesterday regarding the welfare of four missionaries of the Southern Methodist Mission who were reported to be still in Sungkiang. The four are Misses N. L. Drake and N. L. Peacock and Messrs. W. K. Burke and A. C. Bowen. Due to the fear of possible disorder and looting, all foreign missionaries were warned to leave Sungkiang several days ago, but these four members of the Methodist mission chose to remain in order to assist in caring for wounded and looking after church and hospital property. General Sun Chuan-fang, commander of the Fukien forces at Sungkiang, sent word into Shanghai by special messenger last night stating that the American missionaries were in no danger.

American Assessor Bucknell was the complainant in the Mixed Court yesterday against a handcart coolie charged with the careless running of his cart and damage to the Assessor's automobile. Mr. Bucknell, giving evidence before British Assessor Whitamore and Magistrate Li, stated that he was driving his car along Haining Road, near North Szechuen Road, Saturday morning, very slowly on account of the congestion at the time. He saw a handcart coming along North Szechuen Road, and sounded his horn. The handcart men took no notice, and Mr. Bucknell stopped his car and shouted at them, but they continued on and collided with the auto, slightly damaging the fender. In court yesterday the accused man was fined $5.

One of the American members of the faculty of Nanyang College a few days ago missed several articles of jewelry and clothing from his house and along with them a supposedly trustworthy house-boy. The police were notified but no trace of the servant could be found. Yesterday, the faculty member at Nanyang received a letter from his house-boy, stating that the boy had gotten into financial difficulties and had been forced to take the various articles and pawn them. Enclosed with the letter were about a dozen pawn-tickets, showing that about $50 had been realised on the material.

It now costs $5 to make the trip from Shanghai to Minghong over the new motor road connecting this city with the banks of the Whangpoo River. Before the beginning of hostilities at Sungkiang, the regular toll for motor cars traveling out the Minghong Road was $1 for the round trip. Now the fare is $5 and the lettering on the painted sign at the toll-gate has been obliterated with a new sign reading $5. Whether this method has been devised for the purpose of preventing foreign visitors from going to Minghong or whether the toll-gate keeper is doing a little profiteering on his own is not known.

LAFUENTE GETS FEES OF TLS. 500 FROM ROSENFELD

Claim Upheld In U. S. Court Here; Additional Tls. 700 Refused

In the United States Court for China yesterday judgment was handed down by Judge Milton D. Purdy in the suit brought by A. Lafuente, a Spaniard, against A. B. Rosenfeld, American, for fees as an architect and supervisor. The suit was for Tls. 1,250, consisting of Tls. 550 as balance of fees as architect in preparing plans and specifications and supervising the construction of a residence for the defendant and Tls. 700 as expenditures by the plaintiff for an overseer. Judgment was handed down for the plaintiff in the sum of Tls. 550.

In connection with the second cause of action, demanding payment for the services of an overseer from April 22 to December 1, 1922, it appears that the overseer had been in the plaintiff's employ both before and after the period covered by the contract. From evidence given by the plaintiff himself it appeared that he had not intended to charge the defendant for these services until the latter "came and made trouble." Under the circumstances, the Court found no merit to this second cause of action.

As for the first cause of action, for actual fees under plaintiff's contract, plaintiff was entitled to receive the balance unless he was liable to the defendant for damages in negligently performing his duties, as was claimed by the defendant.

The plans, etc., for the building, were prepared on February 28, 1921, and the contract for building let to V. Arbuthnot on April 6, 1921, for Tls. 19,800. A few weeks later the contractor started work, under the plaintiff's supervision, continued for a few months, and then turned the contract over to another party for completion, without the consent of either plaintiff or defendant. By the middle of January, 1922, the residence was enclosed and roofed in, but during the few months following all building work was at a standstill. On March 25, 1922, plaintiff submitted new specifications to the defendant, informing him that it would cost him Tls. 11,020 to complete the house and garage, besides Tls. 15,500 already expended, i.e., an increase of about Tls. 7,000 over the Arbuthnot contract price. The work proceeded, and payments were made from time to time by August 7 aggregating Tls. 9,750. By the middle of November the total amount paid had reached the sum of Tls. 25,250, with an unpaid balance of Tls. 1,340. At the same time the plaintiff in letter to the defendant listed "extras" aggregating Tls. 3,219, these being in addition to the specifications furnished March 25, 1922, when the plaintiff agreed to take over the completion of the residence.

It does not appear that the defendant made any objection to the progress or character of the work under the direction of the plaintiff, during which time the former paid out Tls. 9,750 from time to time, nor to the list of extras which the plaintiff sent him. In a letter dated November 17, 1922, the defendant stated, "As soon as this is completed I shall have pleasure in handing you the balance of your fees . . ."

At the trial counsel for the defense directed the Court's attention to the fact that very many items called for by the original specifications, and which Contractor Arbuthnot was required to furnish under his contract, were not in the house when completed. This was conceded, but when in March, 1922, plaintiff furnished defendant with new specifications as to requirements for completion of the residence, undertaking this for a total of Tls. 11,020, in addition to the Tls. 15,500 already expended, the plaintiff did not agree to complete the residence in accordance with the original specifications but in accordance with the new specifications which he then and there furnished. The "extras" charged for may not have been "extras" according to the original specifications, but they were certainly "extras" according to the new specifications, and it was according to these new specifications that plaintiff undertook to complete "Villa Rosenfeld."

The Court therefore finds the evidence offered by the defendant in support of his counter-claim insufficient to make out a case of damages so as to defeat plaintiff's right to recover the balance of his fees earned under his contract. It is accordingly ordered that the plaintiff have judgment against the defendant in the sum of Tls. 550, together with interest thereon at rate of 6 percent per annum from December 1, 1922, until the date of entry of this judgment, together with his costs in this action.

ALL-NAVY TEAM BEATS SHANGHAI AGAIN SUNDAY

Gallopers Lose Second Game To Sailors, 9 To 6

Following their win Saturday the All-Navy nine were on Sunday a second time victorious over Shanghai. There were some brilliant spots in the game, but in general it was rather loosely played, with many errors, these accounting for most of the runs. Tavares, who caught for the Gallopers, was guilty of three errors, with a couple of passed balls. The Navy scored nine runs on a total of eight hits, which is significant.

Scott pitched for the Gallopers and Daly for the sailors. Both did well, and with proper support there would have been very little scoring. In spite of the misplays which marred the game, it was an interesting contest.

This is the final game scheduled by Shanghai for the present season.

The box score was as follows:—

W. G. Pirie Wins Clay Pigeon Club Shoot Here Sunday

The Shanghai Clay Pigeon Club held a shoot on Sunday afternoon for the "Cash Cup." Mr. W. G. Pirie, shooting with a handicap of 14.65, was the winner over Mr. W. J. Gande by one bird.

The weather was excellent for shooting, as there was no wind and a clear sky.

The conditions of the shoot were 50 Birds, Leggett Trap, and the results were as follows:

	Score	H'Cap	Total
Pirie	41	14.65	55.65
Gande	44	10.65	54.65

PRICE OF RICE SOARS; OSAKA UNDISTURBED

Government Releasing Foreign Stock Of Cereal Of 5,000,000 Bushels

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Osaka, Oct. 9.—The price of rice is now actually higher than that which caused a series of riots all over Japan in August 1918, but people are not very much disturbed over it, because wages and other commodities have also gone up. However the first official estimate of the growing crop puts the production of rice at 58,139,470 koku, or 288,546,189 bushels.

This is slightly below the five-year average, and the prospects are that all the available supply, including this year's crop, the carry-over, the imports from Korea and Formosa, all put together, barely covers the domestic consumption, and leaves nothing at the end of October 1925.

As usual, foreign rice must be consumed, though the people much prefer Japanese rice. The Government is now releasing its stock of foreign rice, amounting to about five million bushels, to keep the supply going and prevent a further rise in price.

Obituary

MR. VINCENT GRUNDY

It will be learned by a great many of our readers with sincere regret that Mr. Vincent Grundy, prominent Shanghai piece-goods man, died on board the Blue Funnel steamer Mentor while on his way back to China from England, and was buried at sea. His death, at the early age of 40, occurred on October 2 near Colombo.

Mr. Grundy, who was a Lancashire man, educated at Mirfield Grammar School, Yorkshire, came to Shanghai in 1909, and quickly became a popular member of the social and sporting sets. He was for some time a keen and active member of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps, and took much interest in the doings of the Amateur Dramatic Club, in some of whose productions he took part. He was a well-known member of the Shanghai Club, the Shanghai Race Club, the Shanghai Cricket Club, the Shanghai Golf Club, the Shanghai Lawn Bowls Club, and the Cercle Sportif Francais, in all of which his cheerful personality will be greatly missed by his fellow-members. As a mark of esteem, the Stewards of the Race Club hoisted their flag at half-mast all day yesterday. The deepest sympathy will be felt for Mrs. Grundy, who shared her husband's sports and hobbies, and also his popularity, and who only recently returned from a holiday in Unzen anticipating an early reunion with her husband, who was expected to arrive in Shanghai on October 21.

AMERICAN WORLD FLYERS REACH BOSTON ON LAST LEG OF FLIGHT AND CHANGE PLANES FOR LANDING GEAR.

A group of pictures taken when the American world encircling aviators reached Boston is shown. The planes in squadron formation are led by Lieutenant Lowell Smith, with Lieutenant Leigh Wade and Lieutenant Eric Nelson following them. Lieutenant Wade rejoined the party at Pictou, N. S. The camera caught Lieutenant Smith's plane just as it touched the water in Boston Bay. A few minutes later the flyers signed the log to mark their first official stop on United States soil. Lieutenant Smith has grasped the pen, while to his right are Wade and Nelson.

WILL MOSUL ISSUE PRECIPITATE WAR?

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 13.—is the Mosul question going to rekindle the flames of war in the Near East, asks Le Journal commenting on the British ultimatum to Turkey granting till noon on October 11 for the withdrawal of Turkish troops behind the line of the status quo, and the cessation of further concentration, otherwise Great Britain will resume full liberty of action.

Le Journal expresses the opinion that the political crisis 'n Great Britain does not lessen the risk. On the contrary, it is Labor's interest to prosecute the affair vigorously. In the event of failure, they bequeath to their successors a very thorny problem, but if victorious they will have the opportunity of scoring a big success.

The Turkish reply to this ultimatum was cabled on October 11.

(Reuter's Service)

Constantinople, Oct. 13.—The Turkish reply to the British ultimatum denies incursions into the Mosul vilayet, declares that Turkey is not concentrating troops, and undertakes not to pass the line Djesse-Binchehab-Tchoulemerik, which, however, marks practically the extreme point of the Turkish incursion, and well within the boundary of the Mosul vilayet, as fixed by the Lausanne Treaty.

BOOK DEALER DISAPPEARS; IS SUICIDE, BELIEF

Visitors Throng Port For October Meeting Of The Races

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tsingtao, Oct. 8.—The mysterious disappearance of a prominent Japanese merchant, Mr. N. Senba, the proprietor of a large book shop in Shantung road, and the circumstances attending the case are attracting considerable attention here.

On Monday morning, Mr. Senba arose early and told his wife he was going for a walk. Subsequently she received a most disquieting message which read: "If I do not return by evening you will know I am dead."

The police have learned by questioning the family that Mr. Senba was not able to attend to his business for the last two years because of recurring spells of mental derangement. The theory is that he may have done away with himself while temporarily suffering from mental aberration.

Another curious incident was the finding in the storeroom of the shop a will written by Mr. Senba. This was addressed to his five employees directing them to "please look after my family and the shop."

The Japanese and Chinese police have been combing the city and surrounding country for the missing man. Mr. Senba was an officer in the Japanese Gendarmerie during the Japanese occupancy.

The reformatory bureau of Kiaochow Territory has been officially organised and will soon start on preparations for two reformatories, one for men and one for women. Both are intended as houses of correction where petty malefactors will, it is hoped, be reformed.

The regular innux of visitors from Shanghai, Tientsin and Peking for the races has begun. The October meeting will be held on Friday and Saturday and a large number of ponies are entered for the sixteen events.

Thirty-four new ponies recently arrived from Hailar, Manchuria, and have been auctioned off. Beside, several ponies from Shanghai have been bought by the different stables.

BRITISH SUPREME COURT DISMISSES WEATHERBE CASE

Hands Down Ruling Against Britisher Who Assaulted Chinese Policeman

The British Supreme Court here yesterday morning dismissed the appeal brought by Mr. D'Arcy Weatherbe against his conviction by the Provincial Court at Peking for assault on Li Kuei-yuan, a Chinese plain-clothes policeman in Octroi employ, the defendant having been fined $25 and ordered to pay $25 compensation, as well as paying the costs of the proceedings. The defendant appealed, and Judge Sir Skinner Turner, of the British Supreme Court for China, yesterday gave judgment.

In the decision the Court mentions that the alleged assault was committed on April 23 last, and judgment in the Provincial Court was given on June 25. The procedure adopted here was that of filing written arguments on both sides, and this, together with the vacation, led to the delay in delivering the judgment.

An appeal, His Honor states, lies only on a point of law. The Court below convicted the defendant, fined him $25, ordered him to pay $25 as compensation and the costs of the proceedings, stating its reasons in a careful written judgment.

The facts are that Weatherbe went to the Post Office to get a parcel: there he was handed with the parcel a notice in English calling upon him to take the parcel to the Octroi office for examination. He neglected to do this, and proceeded towards his motor car. The complainant, who was a plain clothes policeman in the Octroi employ, requested him to go to the Octroi office. This request he disregarded, whereupon the complainant endeavored to prevent him entering the car, and in so doing caught him by the sleeve. An assault was admittedly committed by the defendant on the complainant, so that he was able to get into his car and drive away, leaving the parcel and his chauffeur at the Octroi office.

Proceedings for this assault were then taken, and the case was carefully tried by the Judge of the Provincial Court.

The first ground put forward is that the Court wrongly assumed that the onus of proof was on the defendant to show that the complainant was not acting in the execution of his duty. It is only necessary to say that no such assumption was made at all; the complainant alleged that the complainant was acting within his duty; there was ample evidence to the same effect, and there was no rebutting evidence, and the Court was entitled to find as a fact that the complainant was so acting.

The second ground is that the Court wrongly held that the complainant was entitled to employ reasonable coercive measures against the appellant when it was not proved that, (1) the appellant was liable to pay Octroi duty, (2) the complainant had under the circumstances powers of arrest or detention of a British subject.

I fail to see how the first of these points is material. No demand for the duty was made, and the point was not urged in the Court below, as to the last the Court held on the evidence before it that the complainant had certain powers. That is a finding of fact and cannot be questioned in this Court, which only deals with law, if there was evidence to support it, and there was such.

The real cause of this trouble was not the action of the complainant in seeking to detain or arrest the appellant, it was the defiance by the appellant of the regulation as contained in the notice and of the request made by the complainant that he should comply with the regulation. He has only himself to blame for what happened. He put himself entirely in the wrong to begin with, and even if the complainant exceeded his legal powers, which is not shown, he cannot now be heard to plead such a mistake as a justification for an assault of the nature proved in the case.

The appeal must be dismissed.

to raise military funds required for the continuance of the war against the Fengtien troops, succeeded at the eleventh hour in collecting wherewithal from various quarters to the total amount of $5,000,000, namely, the sum of $50,000 from Mr. Chang Kuo-kan, Minister of Justice; $700,000 from Mr. Wang Ko-min, Minister of Finance; $600,000 from Mr. Wu Yu-lin, Minister of Communications; $400,000 from Mr. Kao Ling-wei, Minister of Agriculture and Commerce; $500,000 from Mr. Wang Yu-chi, Chief Secretary to the President; $500,000 from Mr. Chang Ying-hua, former Minister of Finance; $100,000 from Mr. Pan Fu, former Vice-Minister of Finance; $1,000,000 out of the recently issued exchequer-bonds; and $150,000 from other resources.

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, Oct. 11.—The Metropolitan Police Office yesterday again prohibited all the newspapers here from publishing accounts concerning the plan of the Government for raising military funds and at the same time notified them to the effect that all those, who act contrary to the foregoing order, shall be severely punished on the charge of obstructing military affairs of the government.

(Eastern News Agency)

Hankow, Oct. 11.—Prior to his departure from Peking for the fighting front, Marshal Wu Pei-fu wired to General Hsiao Yao-nan, Tuchun of Hupeh, giving instructions as regards (1) the supply to the North of arms, ammunition, and provisions, (2) the defence of Hupeh, Honan and Hunan, and (3) the policy to be taken viz-a-vis the South-west.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 12.—According to foreign reports the Chihli troops have driven the Fengtien forces from Chiumenkou. There is no other fighting on that front.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Mukden, Oct. 12.—Energetic recruiting of coolie labor for the front is proceeding here, embarrassing local traffic.

(Eastern News Agency)

Mukden, Oct. 11.—According to information emanating from a reliable source, part of Shanhaikwan is still in the hands of the Chihli troops and Chinwangtao has not yet been carried by the Fengtien troops. In the Shanhaikwan sector, troops of the 13th Chihli Division are holding an important strategic position and are still fighting furiously with the Fengtien forces.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tientsin, Oct. 11.—The police were extremely active in the native city today owing to the reported presence of Fengtien agents.

Marshal Wu Pei-fu passed Tientsin today on his way to the front.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 8.—The Government has appointed some more Mongolian princes as custodians of peace and order in Inner Mongolia. A mandate issued last night contains the appointment of Prince Yeng Seng as Commander-in-Chief of the Precautionary Force in the region of the Hsinlinkoerh Tribe, with Prince So-No-Tai-Lo-Pu-Tien as assistant. General Chiao Chien-tsei is appointed Vice-Commander-in-Chief of the precautionary force at Chahar.

General Tsao Jui has sent agents to Suelyuan and Ninghsio to purchase skins for winter clothing for the men of the expedition. The man going to Ninghai will travel by steam launch on the Yellow River and expect to make the return journey inside of a fortnight.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 8.—General Wang Yung-chung, Chief Justice of the Military Court of the Punitive Expedition, is relieved of this concurrent post at his own request, and is succeeded by General Liu Yu-chung, by a mandate issued last night.

Marshal Hsiao Yao-nan, Inspector General of Hunan and Hupei and Superintendent of Reinforcements for the expedition, reports by telegraph that he has sent two brigades of reinforcements to North China. One brigade is under the command of General Kou Ying-chieh, and the other under General Chang Lien-shen.

General Ma Lian-chia, Tuli of Anhui, reports that he has ordered General Tien Chin-yang to organise a mixed brigade for service with the expedition.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 13.—Marshal Wu Pei-fu inspected the Shanhaikwan front yesterday afternoon, and approved of the positions held by the Government troops.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 13.—Latest foreign reports go to show that while the Fengtien troops broke through the Great Wall at Chiumenkow, they did not reach Shihmenkai, and the following day they were driven beyond the Wall.

On the main front the Fengtien troops advanced until their shells fell in Shanhaikwan, killing three Chinese railwaymen. The Chihli forces, however, subsequently recovered all lost ground, and both forces remained in their original positions when the fighting ended.

INSTITUTIONS OF SOVIET STATE TO GO TO CONSULATE

Building To Be General Center For Economic Organs Here

The Soviet Consulate here is to become the center of the various Soviet State institutions represented here in Shanghai, it is now announced, and a number of these organisations are to remove there in the near future.

There are several institutions of this kind in Shanghai, which have been carrying on business here for varying periods of time. The best-known are the State Trade Bureau (Gostorg), the Far Eastern Bank (Dalbank), and the Russian Volunteer Fleet (Dobrflot). All of these, it is reported, are to make their headquarters in the Consular Building, together with some less prominent economic organs.

The centering of these various bodies in the one building, it is expected, will lead to increased facilities for co-operation, as well as material economies. The apartment of the Consulate, it is reported, are no longer to be used as living quarters for officials, but are to be devoted wholly to State requirements.

RANGOON MONKS GIVEN JAIL TERM FOR SEDITION

(Reuter's Service)

Rangoon, Oct. 11.—Ottawa Pongyi, a Buddhist priest and Nationalist leader, was sentenced to three years' rigorous imprisonment on a charge of having made seditious speeches advocating non-payment of the capitation tax. Subsequently a crowd headed by many Buddhist monks held a protest meeting in a square. They refused to disperse, but were charged and dispersed by the police.

The next day a band of monks assaulted an American Professor, Mr. Gleason, of Judson College, and his wife while they were walking in the street. Both were brought to hospital suffering from cuts.

Assaults with knives were also made on a European and a British soldier.

The authorities have taken precautions to prevent further disorders. Police today raided a large monastery in the vicinity of the assault on Professor and Mrs. Gleason and arrested seven monks.

The American missionaries, Prof. Mr. Gleason and his wife, narrowly escaped in the Buddhist disturbances. The Professor was stabbed in the back, and his wife had two deep wounds in the head and forehead. Both were felled to the ground, and in response to their crisis, a Mohammedan cabdriver rushed to their assistance, but retired when threatened with a chopper by one of the assailants. The latter then retired to the monastery, upon which the cabdriver returned and conveyed the bleeding victims to the hospital.

(Reuter's Service)

Rangoon, Oct. 12.—Additional arrests were made today of four Buddhist monks and one layman in two monasteries in connection with the attack on Professor and Mrs. Gleason. These have been identified by witnesses.

COMMUNISTS AT LONDON SCORE DAWES SCHEME

Also Demand £1 Increase A Week Of All Wages And 44-Hour For Week

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 12.—Britain's Communists, represented by contingents from Poplar, Bethnal Green and Deptford headed by bands and banners, attracted a large crowd today at Trafalgar Square, where they made a demonstration in order to protest against the Dawes plan, to demand an increase of £1 a week of all wages and a 44-hour week and to support the unity of international trade unions.

Mr. Tom Mann, the Vice-President of the Workers' Union, made a speech, in the course of which he said that he was a thorough Communist and that he intended to upset the damnable condition of Society. He did not give a tinker's damn at being turned down by the Labor Party. He could not be excluded from the Labor movement.

Mr. Campbell, the Editor of the Workers' Weekly, and Mr. Harry Pollitt also spoke.

The meeting passed a resolution fraternally greeting the sufferers on behalf of the workers of Germany, Poland, India, Egypt and Ireland, and ended by signing the Red Flag and the Internationale.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 12.—The Communist election manifesto describes the election as a fight of the working class against the capitalist class. It demands nationalisation of mines, railways, industries, land and banks; a capital levy; the repudiation of the Dawes Report, and cancellation of war debts and reparations; and declares that a Labor Government must establish a dictatorship of the working-class. It demands a national minimum wage of £4 a week; a maximum 44-hour week; ratification of the Soviet Treaty, and the declaration of the independence of Ireland, India, Egypt and other Colonies.

The Trafalgar Square meeting closed with rather riotous scenes. The Police detained four men.

BRITISH FASCISM AGAINST REDS, SAYS ADVOCATE

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 11.—Lord Ernest Hamilton, in a manifesto on behalf of the British Fascisti organisation, declares that Parliamentary candidates and the electors should realise that British Fascism is the livest force today against the insidious advance of the Reds, whose avowed object is the destruction of the British Empire. The manifesto says that the movement is already alive in many electoral areas and will be able to help where the independence of the voters is threatened by terrorist societies.

Negotiation Is Considered By French As Satisfactory

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 12.—The negotiations for a Franco-German commercial treaty have ended for the present, but will be resumed on November 5 in Paris after the German delegates have conferred with their Government.

Although the French declined to give Germany most-favored nation treatment the course of the negotiations hitherto is described as satisfactory.

Details Given On German Loan

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 12.—It is now learned that the apportionment of the German Gold Mark Loan is as follows: The United States $100,000,000; Britain £11,000,000; France £3,000,000; Holland £3,000,000; Switzerland £3,000,000; Germany £1,000,000; and Belgium, Sweden and Italy £1,500,000 each. The loan will be redeemable in 25 years, with interest at 7 percent.

MOTOR TRUCK CRASHES INTO AND WRECKS SHOP

Several Have Close Call With Electricity Dept. Vehicle

A Chinese shop was wrecked and several persons narrowly escaped serious injury when a motor truck belonging to the S.M.C. Electricity Department crashed into a store at the corner of Avenue Road and North Chengtu Road last night.

The cause of the accident was not clear. It was about the time when theaters, cafes, and other abodes of the worldly were starting their performances, and the staid inhabitants of Avenue Road were retiring to their peaceful rest, that the truck, coming from out of the everywhere into the here, decided to enter a shop on the aforementioned corner. The door being rather too small, the vehicle went right through the wall, to the consternation of the dwellers within, who however managed to jump to safety, and the car, being safely inside, stopped unconcernedly and rested.

There appears to have been a chauffeur with the capricious vehicle when it arrived, but he promptly disappeared for parts unknown, leaving the truck to the tender mercies of the shopkeeper and neighbors. At a late hour last night the vehicle was still there, resting after its strenuous trip of the evening.

More Foreign Marines Landed To Strengthen Defence Of Shanghai

Additional marines from the foreign warcraft in the Shanghai harbor were landed yesterday to the extent of probably doubling the force previously stationed on the borders of the foreign settlements. Just how many marines are now ashore in Shanghai is not known, but it was learned last night that the foreign protective force here is able to muster at least 6,000 marines and sailors and that one Western Power is in a position to land 3,000 men in a very short time if they are needed.

The seriousness of the local situation, in case there is an influx of large numbers of armed men into the Shanghai area was fully realised last night by the foreign municipal authorities as was shown in a complete mobilisation of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps for continuous duty until the situation here has eased down.

A delegation of Chinese property owners from Chapei came into the International Settlement last evening, and according to report interviewed members of the Consular Body with a view to obtaining foreign protection for that area in case such should become necessary. What the reply of the foreign authorities was to this appeal is not known but it is known that they do not view favor the entrance into Chapei of large bodies of Chinese soldiers armed or unarmed and in case the situation does become serious in that section of Shanghai that some appropriate action may be taken. Practically the same situation exists in respect to the Shanghai North Railway station which the foreign Consular and Municipal authorities are watching with much interest. The arrival at this station of large numbers of Chinese troops from the former fighting areas, might quite easily start trouble which in all probability would spread to the borders of the Settlements.

The arrival late yesterday afternoon of five junks loaded with soldiers at the Arsenal also attracted considerable interest in both Chinese and foreign circles. All day yesterday the Arsenal was completely deserted following the departure of Generals Lu and Ho so the arrival of between five and six hundred troops attracted considerable attention. At a late hour last evening it was impossible to determine whether these troops were Kiangsu or Fukien troops or whether they consisted of a contingent of General Lu's troops returning from the front in the vicinity of Sungkiang.

HAVE YOU LITTLE CHILDREN?

If So Let Baby's Own Tablets Protect Their Health and Your Happiness

Every parent knows those times of anxiety when the little one suddenly becomes indisposed, is fretful, sleepless, feverish, keeps father and mother awake through the night longing to soothe and help yet not knowing what to do.

It is just at these times that Baby's Own Tablets, kept ready in the family medicine cabinet, prove the right remedy. So quickly do they bring ease and sleep to the painracked little body and weary eyes that they seem almost to work by magic. Yet it is all done in the most natural way, for the Tablets are absolutely pure, contain not one atom of narcotic or other harmful drug, and can do nothing but good even to the most delicate babe in arms.

Most of the troubles of infancy and childhood arise in the first place from stomach or bowels. Baby's Own Tablets gently remove bowel obstructions, sweeten the stomach, check diarrhoea, relieve cold and croup, allay teething pains, soothe the nerves, expel worms. Chemists sell them, or post free 60 cents the vial, from Dr. Williams Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

British Parties Issue Election Manifestoes

outlines proposals dealing with rural and urban land problems, castigates Labor's failure to solve social problems and opposes the Anglo-Soviet Treaty.

The manifesto says the Laborites forced the election because they are not prepared to face an enquiry into the Campbell case and wish to evade Parliamentary discussion of the loan to Russia, and refers to the Liberals' assistance of the Government's "halting, ineffective and unimaginative" efforts at social reform.

It favors re-establishing economic and commercial relations with Russia but opposes the Anglo-Soviet Treaty.

The manifesto lays stress on the increasing unemployment and shortage of houses and proposes alteration of the system of land tenure, a State-assisted scheme of agricultural credit, businesslike marketing of produce, coordinating of transport services and draining and reclamation, whereby land could be utilised in the interests of the whole community. Furthermore, it proposes to tackle urban problems, whereby land values would contribute to the expenses of maintaining conveniences, utilities and amenities, town slums would be transformed and the leasehold system reformed. It also proposes improvement of educational facilities and teachers' remuneration, and a bold and democratic treatment of excessive consumption of alcohol.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 12.—Mr. Winston Churchill's election address wholeheartedly supports the Conservatives and their program of social reform and Imperial consolidation, and declares that as a general protective tariff is no part of the Conservative program he supports the principle of the Safeguarding of Industries Act and Imperial preference.

Mr. Churchill asserts that the brief experiment in Socialist minority rule has ended in dismal failure. "The Socialists are still our rulers and seek to gain votes by enlisting the forces of discontent in revolutionary movements. Against this double attack of authority and revolt we fall back on the commonsense of the masses and their enduring loyalty to the nation."

In conclusion, Mr. Churchill delivers a smashing attack on the Bolsheviks and their "devilish work, which Mr. MacDonald and his Cabinet seek to help and succor with floods of hard-earned British money."

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 11.—Mr. de Valera announces that the Republicans have decided to contest the Ulster seats in the coming British elections, but if candidates are returned, they will not sit in Parliament.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 11.—Mr. Stanley Baldwin, in an election address, says that the experiment in minority Government has proved a short-lived failure, but it has sufficienty indicated what will be the character of a Socialist Government dependent not on the other parties but on its own extremists. The only way of averting such a possibility is for all desirous of restoration of prosperity and social peace to unite their efforts to return a solid Conservative majority, and to support a broad national policy.

The former Premier accuses the Socialist Government of forcing a rush election. Their refusal of an enquiry into the withdrawal of the Workers' Weekly prosecution suggests, he asserts, that the result of the enquiry would have proved that the course of justice was defected by partisan considerations. Furthermore, Mr. Baldwin declares, the Government has now realised that the makeshift Treaty hurriedly patched up with the Soviets under pressure of the extremists is indefensible.

The address dwells on the utter failure of the Government to deal with unemployment, and the folly of abolishing the McKenna duties, and Part 11 of the Safeguarding of Industries Act and the even greater folly of wrecking the hopes of a rapid expansion of Imperial trade which would have followed the adoption of the proposals of the Imperial Economic Conference.

The address says that the task of grappling with unemployment is a primary obligation on the Conservative Party. While the general tariff is no part of their program the Conservatives are determined to safeguard employment and the standard of living where these are imperilled by unfair foreign competition, by applying the principle of the Safeguarding of Industries Act and analogous measures. Without such provision, the carrying out of the Dawes plan will only prove disastrous to Great Britain.

The best hope of industrial revival, concludes the address, lies in the development of the resources and trade of the British Empire by measures of Imperial preference, the promotion of Empire development, and Empire settlement. Indeed the strengthening of the development of the Empire by every possible means is the first and dominant item of the Conservative policy.

British foreign policy must commend itself to the Dominions and must be conducted with the closest consultation with their Governments. Support and strengthening of the League of Nations on practical lines should be a cardinal principle of British foreign policy, subject always to the overriding consideration that we cannot enter into commitments involving peace or war without the concurrence of the Dominions.

The continuance of security on land, on sea and in the air is one of the first duties of any Government, and the Conservatives, if returned to power, must examine afresh the position in which the present administration has left the defences of the Empire. The Conservatives must scrutinise carefully, in conjunction with the Dominions, the far-reaching commitments and implications of the scheme recently put forward at Geneva.

A common agreement of all parties is desirable for a permanent solution of the agricultural problem. All practical steps would be taken to ensure that imported foreign foodstuffs should be sold as such. The further development of the sugar-beet industry and of rural industries generally would receive particular consideration. "We are opposed to land nationalisation, taxation of land values and all schemes of spoliation."

The address deals at length with housing, age and widows' pensions, education and the necessity for reforms affecting women, children and ex-service men.

London, Oct. 12.—The British Broadcasting Company announce that the Postmaster-General has sanctioned the broadcasting of one speech by each party leader during the coming week.

Hitherto the necessity for impartiality has precluded the broadcasting of anything of a political flavor. This important development will bring the expositions of the three leaders to the homes of several million electors. The speeches will be presented most impartially and very concisely.

All stations will simultaneously broadcast Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's speech at Glasgow tomorrow evening. Mr. Baldwin will speak at Soho on Thursday. The Liberals have not yet fixed their time; probably Mr. Asquith's speech at Paisley will be broadcast.

MORE OFFICIALS OF C. E. RAILWAY ARE ARRESTED

Coup D'Etat Strongly Affects Japanese Position In Manchuria

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 8.—A Harbin report says that the arrests of Messrs. Ostroumoff, Gondatti and Michailoff were made by the Mukden General, but the Commissioner for Foreign Affairs states that Marshal Chang Tso-lin did not order the arrests.

Yesterday two further arrests were made, Mr. Stepunin, head book-keeper of the Chinese Eastern Railway, and Mr. Gavriloff, a Russian merchant of Harbin. Although the latter is not concerned with the railway, he was involved in the purchase of rails from the Vladivostock Government by the Chinese Eastern Railway two years ago. It is reported his arrest was due to his connection with that affair.

So far no whosesale arrests or dismissals of the numerous White Russians employed on the Chinese Eastern Railway have been made, but Soviet control is so strong that the Mukden agreement and the prompt measures taken afterwards are spoken of in Harbin as a coup d'etat, which will strongly affect the Japanese position in Manchuria.

EMBEZZLEMENT OF 90,000 TAELS IS CHARGE BROUGHT

Arrested Chinese Appear In Mixed Court; Remanded

Following the charging and remanding of a Chinese shop assistant in the Mixed Court Saturday, a second man was brought up yesterday charged with the embezzlement of 90,000 taels. The second accused, Woo Pau-kung, is charged in company with the first defendant, and with a third party not in custody, with conspiracy in the forging of accounts and embezzlement of money from one Lee Foh-shing, who employed them. The third man stated to be involved has not yet been apprehended.

The alleged embezzlement covers a long period, extending from 1921 to the beginning of the present month. Woo, the second accused, was arrested on a warrant, and appeared before Mr. Whitamore, British Assessor, and Magistrate Li. Mr. Salmond appeared for the defense.

In Court yesterday Detective-Sergeant Malone outlined the case against the accused, who has been once convicted for gambling, though otherwise the police have nothing to report against him.

The case was remanded until Saturday, for trial in company with the other accused before Assessor Shimizu.

"Imperial" Manganese Steel

Whether used for the lips of Dredger Buckets, the Bucket Chain Links, Pins or Bushes, means fewer stoppages due to breakage or rapid wear. As an example the following extract from a letter may be quoted: "Up to the time I left West Africa the three Bucket Dredgers (gold dredging)

did not break a pin

One Dredger has been at work neary two years, and the other two, 6 months. I think the wear of the Pins constitutes a record."

What would a record like that mean to you in money saved?

They Combat the Film

Those people you see everywhere with whiter, cleaner, safer teeth

Go now and ask for this delightful test. Learn how easy it is to fight film on teeth.

You see glistening teeth wherever you look today. Learn how people get them.

There is now a new method of teeth cleaning which millions have adopted. Dentists the world over now advise it. Careful people of some 50 nations now employ it daily. Find out what they know.

That dingy film

That viscous film you feel on teeth is their great enemy. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film. That's why teeth lose luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. That's why few escaped tooth troubles.

Germs breed in film by millions. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Also of other serious troubles.

Old ways inadequate

No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats film. So the tooth brush left much film intact.

Dental science has now found two ways to fight that film. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. Those two film combatants were embodied in it for daily application.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Some 50 nations use it now

This is part of a world-wide crusade for better tooth protection. Pepsodent is now used in homes of some 50 nations, largely by dental advice.

That tooth paste is called Pepsodent. To millions of homes the world over it is bringing a new dental era.

Other new effects

Pepsodent does other things which research proves essential. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Thus Pepsodent gives manifold power to these great natural tooth-protecting agents.

New beauty comes

See what new beauty comes from whiter teeth. Learn the new daintiness that comes from cleaner teeth. You will be amazed and delighted.

Go get this free tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

You will want those results continued for everyone in your home. Cut out the coupon now.

U. S. Trade With Other Side Of World Trebled In Space Of A Decade

Trade of the United States with our billion neighbors on the opposite side of the globe has trebled since the beginning of the World War. Our imports from the 20 countries and colonies occupying that section of the globe immediately opposite the United States, says the Trade Record of the National City Bank of New York, approximated a billion dollars in the fiscal year 1924, just ended, against $315,000,000 in 1913. The exports to the 20 countries in question in 1924 totaled $712,000,000 against $235,000,000 a decade ago. Taking the aggregate of the trade with these 20 countries, it totaled $1,680,000,000 in the fiscal year 1924 against $549,000,000 in 1913. Imports from the 20 countries in question more than trebled in value, while the 1924 exports thereto were also three times as large as the value in 1913.

FACTORY PRODUCTS IN DEMAND

Especially interesting, says the Trade Record, is the fact that the growth in exports to these countries on the opposite side of the globe occurred chiefly in the products of our articles officially designated as "manufactures ready for consumption," the total exports to Asia and Oceania in 1922, the latest year for which these details are now available, showed an increase of nearly $200,000,000 when compared with those of the year preceding the war, while the group "manufactures for further use in manufacturing" increased $70,000,000 in the same period. Manufactures in fact form about 75 percent of our exports to these far distant countries on the opposite side of the globe.

This heavy movement of manufactures to the orient occurs especially in the classes of merchandise distinctly "American." Take passenger automobiles for example, of which we produce three-fourths of the world's output; the number of machines sent to China and Japan alone in the calendar year 1923 was 5,300 against 401 in 1913. Of cotton cloth the exports to the Philippines in the fiscal year 1924 approximated $10,000,000 against $6,000,000 in 1913; cigarettes to China in 1924 $15,000,000 against less than $1,000,000 in 1912; gasoline to Australia and New Zealand $18,000,000 against 1½ million dollars; lubricating oil to India $3,000,000 against less than a million; tin plate to India 34,000,000 pounds against 19,000,000. Manufacturing materials are the chief imports from the extreme orient, especially india rubber, tin, jute, hemp, wool, hides and raw silk.

POPULATION OF COUNTRIES

The population of the 20 countries occupying the area on the opposite side of the globe with which this growth in our trade has occurred includes, according to official statistics, 431,000,000 in China, 319,000,000 in India, 58,000,000 in Japan, and 57,000,000 in the Dutch Indies, the aggregate of the 20 countries included in the above review being more than one billion persons, and forming about 60 percent of the population of the world.

The distance which our manufactures travel in reaching these far away markets is to the Dutch East Indies 13,000 miles, to Siam 11,000, to Japan 10,000, China 12,000, and to the Straits Settlements 13,000.

Hongkong Stocks

Messrs. Moxon & Taylor state in their weekly share report dated Hongkong, October 3:—

We have had a strong market during the week with rising prices in most stocks, but at the close the tone is slightly easier with more disposition to sell, no doubt due to profit-taking.

The Shanghai market is steady with a certain amount of business done.

The following are the principal alterations since last week:

Hongkong Banks:—Have eased off during the week, closing with sellers at $1,185.

Unions:—Continue firm and could probably be placed at $238.

Hotels:—Have again been the medium of considerable business towards the latter part of the week at $22 cash and $22¾ to $23 for December for Old, New shares being more or less neglected.

Hongkong Lands:—Firmed up to a buying rate of $120 without inducing sellers.

Humphreys.—Are slightly easier and have come to business at $22½.

Coments:—Have been up and down and a large number of shares have changed hands, but at the close are barely steady with sellers at $23 for Combined shares.

Kowloon Wharves:—Have also been up and down, and after being done as high as $214, close with sellers and sales at $207, buyers offering $205.

Hongkong Docks:—After declining during the week, close firm with buyers at $175 cash and $177 for Settlement.

Shanghai Docks:—Have firmed to a buying rate of Tls. 93 and Shanghai would probably pay a little more.

Ropes:—Are quiet at quotations.

Hongkong Electrics:—Have eased off to sellers at $43½.

Hongkong Trams:—Had a big rise during the week and are reported to have been done at $50 for December, but are slightly easier as we go to gress at $47 for November and $46 cash.

Peak Trams:—Continue in good demand and have come to business at $21¾ for Old shares.

China Sugars:—Are steady at quotations but few shares have changed hands during the week.

China Providents:—Have had a sharp rise and continue in good demand with buyers at $33¾ for Combined shares.

China Lights:—Have also been the medium of considerable business at rising prices and, after going to business at $29¼, are slightly easier with sellers at $29.

Dairy Farms:—Also had a smart rise during the week but at the close are easier with sellers at $27½ but no buyers over $26.

Lane Crawfords:—Continue to be asked for at $18¼.

Steamboats:—Had a sharp decline and, as we go to press, have sellers at $40 for Settlement.

Steamboats:—Had a sharp decline and, as we go to press, have sellers at $40 for Settlement.

London Quotations of the 2nd inst:—Hongkong Banks £133.-10/-, Indos Deferred £15 10/-, Shells £3.19.6. All middle prices.

Exchange:—The demand selling rate on London is 2/4⅛ and the T.T. on Shanghai is Tls. 70.

Piece Goods Market

Messrs. Ilbert and Co., Ltd., state in their market report dated October 10: With no material change in the local war situation and the probability of the continuance of present conditions for some time to come, dealers have bestirred themselves to an effort to get their goods into consumption and have arranged for some shipments to unaffected areas on a monthly credit system, thus assisting their up country buyers whose means of finance have been severely handicapped by the war.

As a consequence there has been a slight improvement in clearances but these still remain very unsatisfactory and a poor offset to the substantial shipments coming into the port.

Prices for the raw material have fluctuated within narrow limits during the week under review and the issue of the final Bureau report is now awaited with interest.

Manchester advices indicate a firm attitude on the part of manufacturers but apart from some business in dyed goods few indents have been placed from this market.

Local Cotton.—Market steady with comparatively little business, quotations being as follows:—Tungchow at Tls. 38.00-37.00, Ordinary Shanghai at Tls. 37.00-36.00, Steam Ginned at Tls. 37.00-36.50, Ningpo at Tls. 36.50-36.00, Shensi at Tls. 38.75-38.50, Hankow at Tls. 37.50-37.00.

Yarn.—Conditions in this trade still continue depressed though not altogether stagnant, and the only business we have to report is as follows:—20's.—1,500 bales at Tls. 165.50.

Confidence In Outlook For Steel Felt In U. S.

Conditions Point Toward A Prosperous Year In 1925, But No Important Change Is Looked For Until After Election

Pittsburgh, Sept. 13.—Growing confidence in the immediate business outlook is voiced by leading men of the iron and steel industry in this district, including President James A. Campbell, of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company; Robert Bentley, president of the Ohio Iron and Steel Company; President Jonathan Warner, of the Trumbull Steel Company; A. E. Adams, president of the First National Bank of Youngstown, and others.

In the opinion of these executives, all conditions point toward a very prosperous period in 1925 for the industry. However, until the election, district leaders predict no outstanding improvement over current conditions, although they feel that the current betterment will continue. There may be a moderate slump in November carried into December, but they do not look for any sharp recession.

Other indications of the sustained betterment is in the improved rate of steel ingot production, which runs between 75 and 80 percent. This week, for the first time since early in the year, Trumbull Steel Company at Warren is operating all of its seven open hearth furnaces. Merchant bar mill capacity is also engaged at higher rate than at any time this year, with all except a few obsolete units occupied.

Blast furnace operations are still held in check by reason of the fact that steel departments have been using cold iron to a considerable extent. In consequence, the rate of improvement in steel making has not yet been attained in the blast furnace department. Early expansion in iron output is indicated, however, as inroads are being made into iron piles.

Sheet mill production at a 75 percent average is appreciably better than the low point reached last June, when schedules dropped to less than 15 percent. Since August, when the upturn in the sheet industry began, there has been a steady but moderate gain. Certain of the non-integrated rollers are maintaining better than 75 percent production.

Demand for tinplate is increasing, but prices are holding at the same level as during the last several months. Tinplate is offered at $5.50 per base box of 100 pounds. Most of the hot mills are working full time.

Railroad traffic figures for September are expected to show a progressive improvement. Movement of loaded cars in August was 10 percent greater than in July, but was still 17½ percent below the August, 1923, movement.

Coal and coke are two commodities that are moving in much less volume than a year ago, cutting down the average loadings for the district. Much of the lake coal shipped this year has been coming from the non-union fields of West Virginia and Kentucky. Thus, carriers serving the union fields of Pennsylvania have not benefited as much from the lake coal movement this year as in other years.

Furthermore, the sharp decline in blast furnace operations during the last four months retarded shipments of iron ore from lake ports to inland furnaces. It is estimated the ore movement this season will be about 15 percent below that of last year, in consequence.

Thus far, in September, with the exception of the Labor Day decline, shipments of steel products have averagd better than during August. District fabricating property owners are vitally interested in the movement to lengthen the building season and prevent, as much as possible, the sharp decline in construction during the winter months.

Commenting upon the situation, Gustave Kahn, vice-president and general sales manager of the Truscon Steel Company, states: "The idea of crowding a year's construction work into three or four hectic months is a relic of the days when concrete could not be poured after the thermometer dropped below the freezing point, and it was believed unsafe to lay bricks during the cold weather. Due to modern construction facilities any kind of building, from a dwelling to a skyscraper, can now be put up, no matter what the weather may be, and without any delay.

"The long periods of inactivity have been done away with to a considerable extent, but the interludes are still with us. Lengthening of the building season will mean greater production from men now engaged in the building trades and will go far toward attracting capable apprentices."

Fabricating interests are maintaining production at 85 to 90 percent of normal.

LESS GOLD IS MINED IN THE UNITED STATES

Ex-Yale Professor Predicts Canada Will Surpass U.S.A. In Output

Canada by 1926 will displace the United States as second among the gold producing countries of the world, in the opinion of Louis D. Huntoon, New York mining engineer and a former professor of mining and metallurgy in Yale University. Canade is now third, Africa ranking first.

Mr. Huntoon, after a prolonged study of the Dominion's gold districts, reports his conclusions in the official journal of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers.

Canada's output, he says, is increasing rapidly, while in the United States since 1915 there has been a rapid decline. For the last 11 years the United States has produced 18.7 percent of the world's production, the past year's total, now estimated at $51,000,000, being about 50 percent of that for 1915.

"During these 11 years," says Professor Huntoon, "the Dominion of Canada has produced 4.5 percent of the total production of the world; in 1922 the production increased to 8.1 percent. This rapid increase in the gold production of Canada and rapid development of new gold deposits, which as yet have not been equipped with mills of sufficient capacity to handle the ore developed, will have an important bearing on the world's production.

"In view of the producing mines, areas being developed, areas being explored, and favorable areas to be explored, it is my opinion that within the next five years the production of the Dominion will exceed the present production of the United States.

"These new gold mines promise permanency. They are lode or vein deposits; they have been developed to a depth of 2,500 feet; the gold content has not decreased with depth; and there is every indication that they will continue to great depth. The permanency of the deposits with depth is based, not noly on the present depth and values, but also on petrographic analyses of ores from many of the producing mines and non-producing areas."

THINKS KEYNES IN ERROR

Saying that an analysis of the world's production of gold shows a steady annual decrease since 1915, Mr. Huntoon asserts that John Maynard Kynes, the English economist, is in error in holding that a quarter of a century has passed since the discovery of an important gold deposit.

Within the last ten years, he points out, two very important gold producing areas have been developed in Ontario, in the Porcupine area the annual producion of the Hollinger Mine for the last four years surpassing that of the Homestake Mine of South Dakota.

The largest annual producer of gold in the United States is the Homestake, which in 1922 produced $6,285,317 in comparison with the Hollinger, which produced $12,274,115. The annual production of the Homestake for several years will average slightly in excess of $6,000,000.

Africa for many years has held first place in gold production. Since 1912 its annual production has been slightly over $200,000,000, equivalent to 49.7 percent of the world's production. Its annual production since 1912 has remained fairly constant. Last year's production is estimated at approximately $200,000,000.

In a forecast for 1924, Mr. Huntoon estimates that the production of the United States will remain stationary at $51,000,000, while that of Canada will rise to $30,000,000. Canada's production last year was $25,294,076. In 1922 it was $26,116,050, compared with $48,849,096 for the United States; in 1921 it was $19,148,916, compared with a United States production of $50,067,307.

LACKED ENOUGH POWER

"The production of Canada," continues Mr. Huntoon, "would last year have surpassed that of 1922 if there has been sufficient hydroelectric power to have operated the mills at full capacity. During 1923 new mills have been erected and old mills have greatly increased their capacity. The indications are that in 1926 the Canadian production will surpass that of the United States and give Canada second palce among the countries of the world producing gold."

"The annual production of Ontario," according to Mr. Huntoon, "surpasses that of any individual state in the United States. The present annual production of the Hollinger Mine is practically double that of the largest mine in the United States. The future possibilities of the pre-Cambrian shield of Canada are beyond comprehenson; this area is of tremendous extent, and the larger part of it is unexplored and inaccessible other than by canoe and portage."

More American Newspaper Comment On The China War

IN spite of the national election campaign now being on in full force in the United States, the American papers have been able to find space for considerable comment on the China war situation. The most interesting phases of the comment, at least from the standpoint of the American and other foreign residents in China, are the struggles of the editors to explain to their readers just what the fight in China is all about. This is shown in the headings given to many of the editorials: "What is going on in China?"

And in addition to the editorial comment, the humorists and "Columnists" are also having their fling. A paragrapher in the New York Evening World says: "Since General Chi Hsieh-yuan has set a price of $50,000 on the head of General Lu Yung-hsiang, the only thing that remains for General Lu is to double the quotation for General Chi Hsieh-yuan's head." Another humorist on the New York American wonders whether General Chang Tso-lin of Mukden by any possibility could be related to a "General" Chang, a Chinese giant who toured the United States with a circus some forty years ago.

The editor of the New York World hit upon the clever idea of applying the Chinese war to the map of the United States in his attempt to explain the situation to American readers. He put General Chang Tso-lin in Boston, General Wu Pei-fu in Washington, D. C., and the struggle around Shanghai down at Jacksonville, Florida. Since the map of the Atlantic seaboard of the United States was not extensive enough to get Dr. Sun Yat-sen on the continent, he put him down in Yucatan, Central America. Then from these strategic points which are familiar to most American citizens, or at least to New Yorkers, the editor of the World proceeded to work the thing out—to his own satisfaction at least.

The above, however, is the exception, for most of the editors of responsible newspapers now have a fairly clear insight into Chinese geography and know enough about the political situation to align the leaders in the struggle and to print their names correctly. This is evidenced even in the newspapers in medium sized cities. Thus the Times-Union of Rochester, N. Y:—"China is ridden to death and cursed by factions. A tuchun, or general or mandarin, something of that order, assumes great superiority. He is the autocrat over thousands of coolies and peasants. Their lives lie in his hands. He compels them to do his bidding, and with money stolen or retained from the public funds, he finances an army, which he pays no wage and provides with scant fare, and proceeds to make trouble. China is in a bad way. It has been in a bad way for some years. It will remain in a bad way until a national government is finally established which has power enough to compel order and put down civil strife. It is doubtful whether this can be done without outside help. But if any one nation should attempt to help China out of her internal difficulties, other nations would protest and vociferously demand the "open door." In time, the League of Nations may solve the Chinese puzzle; but years may pass before this is accomplished."

The Times-Union of Albany also analyses the China situation in similar vein: "What's going on in China? Well, the fundamental trouble is that the Central Government of Peking is nothing but a name. It occupies buildings and controls archives, but has no armies. The armies of China belong to the great Super-Tuchuns, or military governors of groups of provinces. Because the Tuchuns have the military forces, they also collect the public revenues."

The Rochester, N. Y. Herald also seems to have a rather clear insight into the background of the China situation: "As in the days before a republican form of government was attempted, China continues to be ruled by combinations of military leaders. The central government at Peking is a government in name only. Actual power resides in semi-independent chiefs who maintain large and well-equipped armies in their respective provinces. They trust nobody and refuse to lay down their arms on orders from Peking. In fact, the government at Peking is supported and continued only by sufferance or under the protection of one or another of the leaders, or by a combination, such as that now formed by General Wu Pei-fu. . . China is still a long way from realising national unity and modern freedom of development. The older generation stubbornly refuses to give up its cherished system of graft that hampers the development of industry, commerce and education. Young China chafes under restraint, but can do little until the old order passes. That time may not be many years hence; meanwhile, China seems doomed to struggle ineffectually for the essentials of modern progress and liberty."

The New York Times, always well informed on China politics, printed the following on September 9, a few days after the beginning of the war: "What began apparently as a contest between two provincial Governors for the control of China's greatest port has broadened into a conflict that may involve the whole of China. The Peking Government has issued a decree of outlawry against the Governor of Chekiang, who is "defending" Shanghai against the ruler of Kiangsu. From Mukden the master of Manchuria, Chang Tso-lin, has issued a declaration of war against the Peking Government and its military guardian, the redoubtable Wu Pei-fu, who two years ago drove Chang from the capital. There is every reason, now, for believing that it is not a case of a local broil spreading over the country, but that the struggle for Shanghai was intended by those who brought it about as the opening move in a nation-wide contest. It is Wu Pei-fu who seemingly took the initiative.

"In a topsy-turvy situation the outstanding facts are these: The city of Shanghai lies well within the boundaries of the Province of Kiangsu, but for five years the city has been under the administration of the Governor of the province to the south, Chekiang, the reason being that back in the troubled days of 1919 in China he took who had the power and he kept who could. When, therefore, Marshal Chi, Governor of Kiangsu, sets out to regain control of Shanghai he is acting within his legal powers. When General Lu of Chekiang joins issue with him he can pose as the de facto 'defender' of the city. Today there seems no doubt that Marshal Chi was acting under the inspiration of Peking, which means Wu Pei-fu. And the motive may be one of two. It may be that Wu is out for personal aggrandisement. But it is also conceivable that he is actuated by patriotic reasons. The attack against the Governor of Chekiang may have been designed as the first step in a struggle for the reunion of China. For the Province of Chekiang is the last Anfu or anti-Peking stronghold in Central China. After that would come, according to some observers in China, 'a grand onslaught on Sun Yat-sen' in his Canton stronghold.

"China is today divided into three virtually independent sections. Central China recognises, as a whole, the Peking Government and its military prop, Wu Pei-fu. Manchuria is under the absolute control of Chang Tso-lin. In the south Sun Yat-sen has held out with a varying degree of success. If we imagine Wu of Peking earnestly resolved upon the reunion of the country, he would have a choice between attacking Chang in Manchuria and then taking on Sun in the south, or the other way about. Apparently he chose the second course. Sun Yat-sen as the less formidable adversary might be more easily disposed of, in which case Wu might turn with increased prestige against Chang of Manchuria. The way to the south, however, was blocked by the presence in Central China of the Chekiang Governor of Shanghai, whose sympathies are with Chang Tso-lin. There the issue was joined.

"That would be one explanation of why Sun Yat-sen should now be threatening to march against the Peking troops from the south while Chang is coming on from Manchuria. There is little in common between the extremely radical views of Sun Yat-sen and the ex-bandit ruler of Manchuria; but they are now threatened by a common enemy."

The landing of American and other foreign marines in Shanghai naturally attracted great interest in the United States, as is shown in comment in practically all of the papers. Thus the New York Herald-Tribune:

"The landing of marines may, in the tangled intricacies of Oriental politics, mean almost anything; but China has already learned that it is better to have them come ashore too early rather than too late. When the Allies took up the march to Peking in 1900 they were a month or so behind time, and China has been paying the Boxer indemnity ever since. It is possible to be of two minds about the whole history of Occidental interference in the Far East, but it is a situation rather than past history which now confronts the powers whose nationals are scattered up and down the eastern part of China. These must be protected, and in every way it is better to get the protection to them beforehand then after something has happened. If the ultimate consequences are not entirely predictable, that is because nothing in China ever is predictable to a Westerner."

The Late Mr. Darwent

THERE passed away in Tientsin early on Sunday morning one of the most forceful and withal one of the most charming personalities with whom old Shanghai residents had the pleasure of coming in contact at one time—the Rev. C. E. Darwent, formerly Pastor of the Union Church in Shanghai and subsequently transferred to the Union Church in Tientsin. When the "call" came for Mr. Darwent to proceed to Tientsin, Shanghai residents in general and his congregation in particular felt that it was a wrench to part with Mr. Darwent, as the latter, both as an effective preacher and as a man, had deeply endeared himself to the foreign communities in Shanghai. It was a genuine pleasure to listen to his sermons or read them in the newspaper, and their appeal was not confined to Christians alone but embraced a much wider radius. His sermons were distinguished for their combination of that fine spiritual force and practical wisdom with which their author was peculiarly endowed. A note of real Christianity ran through the lines of every single sermon that Mr. Darwent preached and the human element was a marked characteristic both of the sermon and of the man himself in his daily contacts with his fellow-men. His deliveries in church were characterised by an erudition, a stateliness of diction and elegance of composition that indicated wide reading. Small wonder that his congregations, and that larger circle which followed his utterances through the newspaper press, eagerly looked forward to his sermons from week to week.

The late Mr. Darwent's outstanding qualities were the exact antithesis of denominational and sectarian cant. He cared little for soulless dogmas and concentrated more on emphasising the essential brotherhood of man much in the same way that Confucius many centuries ago propounded his simple but all-embracing doctrine that all within the four seas are brothers in the last analysis. Many of his sermons had a direct appeal for young men and much of his good work must necessarily have been unseen and unrecorded. He exerted a strong, active, Christian influence on the lives of those who came in touch with him and many a man must have secretly thanked him for developing strong faith where before there was only skepticism. Breadth of vision was another quality of his many-sided nature which was evident outside the precincts of the church. Mr. Darwent was a living proof of the fact that an ordained minister of the church need not necessarily throttle all legitimate enjoyments in life. He did not attempt to suppress joy; on the contrary, he himself was of the most joyous disposition, and the gloom sometimes associated with godly men had no place in his philosophy. He could jest and take a glass of wine on occasion without any qualms of conscience and he did not look upon the legitimate stage as an abomination. Local sports clubs and volunteers have pleasant recollections of the late Mr. Darwent as a genial personality. He was, in short, a man among men, and we imagine a few more ministers of the church of Mr. Darwent's type would win more men for religion than any amount of dismal preaching which holds out before our eyes the pleasant vista of eternal fire and brimstone when we have shuffled off this mortal coil.

Excerpts From Great Writers

By Mathy

IT WON'T WORK

It won't work, eh? You say it's all right to have ideals, but you've got to be practical in this world. Personal convictions are commendable, but in actual life one must trim, and accommodate, and compromise, to get along. It is well to be good and kind and generous, and to return good for evil, and turn the other cheek and all that, but really, you know, in this world one cannot possibly put such a program through. He would be eaten up.

SO!

Yes, you continue, we must face facts. We must deal with stern realities. It is conditions that confront us, and not theories. We must live on earth, not among dreams.

Very well!

Let us stick to stubborn, hard, tough facts. Let us waste no time debating theories.

And let us ask:

1.—Did you ever try the ideal life? Did you ever honestly, for a fair space of time, long enough to get results, test the plan of absolute intellectual honesty, altruism, and the principle of the Beatitudes?

Answer: The most of you have not. You simply THINK it won't work. You BELIEVE that you would be imposed upon, wronged, and devoured. It is YOU who are the theorist.

As a matter of fact, the majority of people don't know whether living the higher, finer, ideal life will work or not. They have never tried it.

2. How many persons do you know who do consistently and persistently try it? Have you noted them carefully, if you have met any?

And if you have studied their cases, haven't you found that invariably they are cheerful, contented, happy, and strong in character?

Did it never occur to you, being a practical soul, that all this commonly accepted talk of "be good and you'll be lonesome," and "the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount are irridescent dreams," is sheer dogmatism, pure speculation, and rests on no facts whatever?

And what facts you do use are isolated, spasmodic experiments in idealism you have made, or have heard that others have made, here and there, and not any settled habit of life.

3. Also take a look at your samples—there are plenty of them—who are trying the opposite program. The selfish, grasping, vindictive, vengeance-seeking, proud, shrewd, cunning, hard, cruel, pleasure-chasing crowd, eating and drinking to repletion, mad for new amusements, eager to be rich, famous, powerful—look at them, the world is full of them—are they full of the joy of life?

On the contrary, they are restless, unsatisfied, pessimistic, world-weary, bored, pitying their poor selves, and suspecting everybody else.

If you have so much "practical" common sense, why not use it? Why not get hold of a few facts and quit theorising about something of which you have no actual knowledge?

It won't work, eh—to be good? Perhaps not. Try it and see.

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Hall's Distemper

Seeing And Not Seeing A Celestial Spectacle

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

Sights like that here described are among the rarest rewards of sky-gazing:

"Near midnight, about April 15, 1912, in Kentucky, my father and I witnessed a sight that we could not explain. We saw a bright light overhead shoot across the sky and then stop. For several minutes the earth was lighted up around us so that we could have seen a pin lying on the ground. The light slowly faded away, and as it did so the ends curved inward, taking several minutes to assume the shape shown in the sketch. We thought it must have been a meteor, but were unable to account for the curving of the ends of the light as it faded away. Can it be explained.?"

Without doubt it was a meteorite. It is somewhat remarkable that the observers heard no noise of an explosion, inasmuch as the meteorite was high in the sky and consequently comparatively near. However the noise would be weakened by the relatively slight density of the upper air. It often happens, nevertheless, that the explosion of a large meteorite produces thundering sounds that reverberate like a cannonade. There are two or three points in the description that evidently do not accurately represent the facts, which may have been partly forgotten through lapse of time or confused through the effects of surprise and unacquaintance with the nature of the phenomenon. For instance, it is stated that for several minutes the earth was lighted up so brightly that a pin could have been seen on the ground. For "minutes" read seconds, and the description would be far nearer to what must actually have been the case. A meteorite that "shoots" across the sky cannot remain in view more than a few seconds. Until their velocity is greatly reduced by atmospheric resistance these bodies move at speeds varying from 10 or 20 to more than 40 miles a second, depending upon the direction of their flight with reference to that of the earth's own motion.

The light "shot across the sky and then stopped." Further on it is stated that "the light slowly faded away," etc. This discrepancy should not be taken as seriously invalidating the description of the phenomenon; it is only another example of the inexperience of the observers.

I am assuming that there was an explosion, though unheard, on account of which is described as succeeding the stoppage of the moving light. The light stopped (moving) and then slowly faded away, and the luminous appearance that succeeded the stoppage curved inward at each end, taking several minutes to assume the form shown in the sketch.

This luminous phenomenon was undoubtedly caused by the gases or other debris, such as dust, formed by the destruction of the meteorite. Similar appearances frequently succeed the explosion of a meteorite, and remain visible for from a minute or two up to a quarter of an hour or more. Their motions are probably due to currents of air. In this particular case the peculiar form assumed would seem to have resulted from eddying motions set up in the atmosphere around the place of explosion. The only circumstances that might be regarded as indicating that there was no explosion is the fact that the observers mention no sudden outburst or increase of light at the moment of the stoppage of the rushing motion. But the brightness throughout the course of the meteorite's flight seems to have been so great that any increase accompanying the explosion may have escaped special notice.

I have dwelt a little upon this case because it shows so well how not to observe an unusual celestial phenomenon. Of course, the observers are not to be blamed for not doing what an astronomer would have done in their place. Yet, as every reader must notice, the essential facts of location with reference to wellknown stars, direction of motion across the sky, time, height above horizon at beginning and end, etc., are entirely absent. If you have the good chance to see a meteorite do not neglect these "data of science," which a quick eye and a cool head can easily collect. And write them down at once.

DRESS

Straight From the Middle of the Back Soars Trimming on Smart New Hats

It was a characteristic of the Directoire period in millinry fashions to wear the ornament right in the middle of the front—suggestive sometimes of comb on the middle of a rooster's head.

A woman's riding hat of the period shows a postilion-shaped felt hat with an enormous pompon worn right in the middle of the front. An elaborate afternoon headdress has two large ostrich plumes jutting upward and outward right over the wearer's nose. Even men sometimes wore their cockade or other hat ornament right in the middle of the front. Wedding headgear of the time shows a profusion of white lace and orange blossoms with a single white plume stuck right up in the middle of the front, and quaint little mob caps often had a ribbon tied around them ending in a perky little pons right in the middle of the back.

Now although much is said about the adaptation of the Directoire mode at the present time, the tendency is to reverse the order of trimming, and quite frequently on smart new French [illegible] the trimming is placed right in the middle of the back. It is spoken of as a smart trick of French milliners recently to place aigrettes or pompoms right in the middle of the back of felt hats.

During late summer French women adopted the high-crowned hat of Directoire suggestion quite as uniformly as they had formerly worn the small cloche. Right away question was raised in this country as to whether the high-crowned hat would ever be popular here. The general conclusion seemed to be that it would not, at least for the present. The opinion is likewise expressed that the shape is not suited to American faces, hence it will never become accepted here as it has been in France.

But don't forget that the small cloche prevailed in Paris for six months or more before we Americans took to it, and the statement was even made that it wasn't suited to American faces—that it never would be adopted here.

Yet never in the height of its Paris run did the cloche meet more slavish acceptance than it has had in this country, and a glance at the tables and cases of the millinery department in any department store will show you that those who make the vending of hats their business still pin their faith in the cloche. Obviously the majority of women have not wearied of it, and the high Directoire shapes will in America remain the choice of the few for months to come.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

BY MARY MARSHALL

WHAT CAN YOU TELL FROM YOUR HAIR?

If It's Light Brown

The light-brown-haired women are thoroughly domestic in disposition, and usually make good wives and mothers.

They are the contented ones of the earth, and therefore have not overmuch ambition. This very quality sometimes leads them into uneventful lives, for they are quite likely not to seek adventure if it does not come to them.

WHEN YOU GARNISH

Lemon may be used as a garnish with all sorts of fish, including shell fish and canned fish. They may be simply cut into thin slices or into quarters. Some cooks take pains to cut them into fancy shapes, pinking the edges of the skin. Some epicures like lemon as a garnish with veal cutlets also.

Watercress is used usually only as a garnish for beefsteak. It may likewise be used to good advantage with cold chicken.

Cold cooked beets, either pickled or simply boiled, make most attractive garnishes. At this time of the year a little beet root may be saved over for this purpose whenever beets are served as vegetable. Slice the beet thin and then cut with fancy garnish cutter into stars, circles and other attractive shapes. An attrative salad may be made by laying a bed of lettuce leaves and then making a ring of cucumber and beet slices alternating and overlapping.

In England it is considered almost necessary to the proper presentation of fruit to have some green leaves on which to serve it. The idea is a good one. But few fruit dealers in this country could accommodate us by having leaves with the fruit. Grape leaves are attractively used with any fruit, and when you cannot get these Virginia creeper or woodbine leaves are attractively used and it is a good plan to have a Virginia creeper vine on one of your trellises for just this purpose. The foliage is thick and it will not suffer by occasional robbing of its leaves.

Hard-cooked eggs are most attractive as a garnish, and for this purpose you should by all means have one of those simple little egg slicers by which an egg may be cut into neat, even thin slices quite easily.

Young, Once FarmBoy, To 'Rule' Germany

American Lawyer, Berlin Expects, Will Have Autocratic Power

BY SILAS BENT

Owen D. Young's power as Agent General for reparation payments under the Dawes plan will be greater, according to the German press, than that of Wilhelm Hohenzollern at the height of his dominion as Emperor. He will be the presiding genius of the new gold bank, of the German railways, of the industrial monopolies, budgetary revenues and the transfer of payments to the Allies.

Word came from Paris recently that Mr. Young had agreed to accept the post at least long enough to set up the complicated machinery for the reparation transfers and organise a staff of a hundred men. This will require not less that three months, perhaps six. He may leave in his place, when he returns to the United States, the youthful Seymour Parker Gilbert Jr., whose remarkable record as Under Secretary of the Treasury astonished Washington and the American financial world. But that Young will set up the machinery, after the necessary laws have been passed in Germany and the allied countries, is a foregone conclusion. Only an unexpected hitch in making the Dawes plan effective can prevent it.

Yet Young must have been taken aback when he was christened "Owen the First" by the Neue Berliner Zeitung not long ago. He is one of the most unassuming and democratic of men. He hasn't so much as a royal strut, but still harks back in his gait to the furrow where he used to wrestle with the plow. It is conceded that credit for the plan should go to him more than to any other single person. General Dawes himself, when he returned after the European conferences, said: "Go and talk with Young—he knows more about it than anybody else."

To reduce the matter to figures, Dawes presided at forty-eight sessions of the full committee.

Young presided at and directed sixty-eight meetings of his subcommittee, appointed to find a way of stabilising German currency. Without a stable medium of exchange, Germany cannot pay. That was the primary problem. There were related problems of a balanced budget and the flight of German capital to other countries. Subcommittees which considered these were headed by Englishmen.

The plan contemplates a $200,000,000 loan to Germany, to be floated principally in New York and London. The underwriting banking houses must have a man on the ground to see that the terms are carried out. This country can afford to carry more than its share of the loan and has no reparation claim. Obviously the man on the ground should be an American; and obviously Owen D. Young is the man, since he knows more about the plan than any other American.

Young has other qualifications, of temper and temperament, which suit him eminently to be a mediator between Germany and her creditors, as well as a Commissioner to see that the terms of the loan are not shirked nor evaded. The story of how he came to be head of the greatest electrical corporation in the world will reveal those traits; but let us see first what his duties and powers will be as Debt Commissioner in Germany.

A PROPOSED REMEDY

One of the remedies suggested by Young and his committee is a German gold bank, with a capital of $100,000,000, its stock to be sold both within Germany and abroad. It would issue the only paper currency. One can pass by the reserve requirements and the composition of the personnel. The important thing is that there shall be a Commissioner, who shall be a foreigner, and whose duties shall be:

To enforce the provisions of the law regarding note issues and the maintenance of reserves.

To demand all statistics and documents he needs.

To make any investigations he thinks necessary, in person or through his assistants.

To have full authority over the delivery of notes—currency.

To have supervision over the $200,000,000 loan which would be deposited in the new gold bank.

To superivise the collection of taxes on customs, alcohol, tobacco, beer and sugar, which are collateral security for the loan.

Reparation payments, which are to be met (after a certain period) before the loan payments are made, would be deposited in the new gold bank; and Young will be Chairman of a transfer committee of five, the others being French, English, Italian and Belgian. This committee controls the transfer of cash to the Allies and the program of "deliveries in kind," in such a way as to avoid depreciating the new bank's currency, upsetting the budget and ruining the plan.

The broad details of the Dawes plan are common knowledge; the broad powers of the proposed Commissioner have received less attention. The report of the commission disavows "any system which would involve, directly or indirectly, the virtual control of all Germany's revenue and expenditures." Not all of them; but the system would control the bulk of them, and would have first claim on revenues before other expenditures could be made.

There is nothing new in this. A virtual dictatorship has been set up in Austria under an international loan to that country. The United States has set up a virtual dictatorship in Haiti in regulating the fiscal affairs there. Many other instances could be noted. These things are held to be necessary by financiers in order to avert political uncertainties. Politics, being psychological, is largely a gamble; banking, being mathematical, is nearly an exact science. Bankers require exact guarantees, not for their own protection, because they do not themselves put up the money for international loans, but for the protection of their clients, who actually produce the funds. Their arbitrary methods in a score of weak and "backward" countries where capital was at stake have been denounced time and again; but there seems no immediate prospect that the methods will be altered in the case of Germany.

For years Young's personality has been familiar to Big Business in this country; recently it has become of momentous importance in Europe as well. Long before he went to Europe his name was under discussion as a possible Democratic nominee for the Presidency. His share in framing the Dawes plan, instead of furthering that thought by focusing public attention on him, eliminated him, because it was clear that this work might bring a prior claim on him. He was too "dark" for the campaign, anyhow, too little known to the electorate. If he had remained on the farm we might—who knows?—have had a one-gallus candidate!

For Young was born nearly fifty years ago on a 120-acre tract near Van Hornesville, N. Y., where his family had tilled the soil since 1750. He comes of a farmer breed. His ancestors had left their fields to bear arms in the Revolution and in the War of 1812, but their greatest political distinction had been in town and county offices. Owen was the only son, and his work was cut out for him. Often, before his 6 o'clock breakfast, he fared forth to the pasture for the cows, helped milk them, hitched up a team and took the milk to a cheese factory at Van Hornesville, returning with an appetite calculated to what was set before him.

Many of the days were as busy as that until sundown; but the boy had even then a thirst for reading, and he used to take books with him into the fields, reading them in the shade of trees, for all the world like the bucolic figures of whom Virgil and Theocritus sang in their pastorals. One hot day the father took the boy to Cooperstown, and the two, as is the way of country folk, loafed at the County Court House and heard two lawyers argue a case. The room was cool. The lawyers were doing nothing more difficult than talking. It looked a lot easier than hoeing a potato patch, and a sudden ambition awoke in the breast of Owen D. Young. Here was an easy way of making money. He would be a lawyer.

The chances of realising that ambition were slim. There was no money to send the boy to college, and he was needed, sorely needed, on the little farm. But finally an uncle went to help Owen's father, and the boy was permitted to go to the academy in East Springfield, N. Y. Every Monday morning his father drove him to school with a cheesebox containing food enough to last the week. The boy wanted to try later for a Cornell scholarship, but he was only 15, and the competitors must be 17. One Sunday Dr. Alpheus Hervey, President of St. Lawrence University, visiting Van Hornesville, heard the tall, lank youth conducting services in the Universalist Church there, and fell into talk with him. Then he went to the farm to urge that he be sent to college. And finally a way was found. The father borrowed $1,000 and the boy went to St. Lawrence.

Not all that thousand was used up at St. Lawrence. Owen worked when he wasn't studying, and so was able to move on to the Boston University Law School, where he was graduated in 1896.

The fledgling lawyer began practicing in the office of Charles H. Tyler of Boston. Probably it seemed to him in that day that the sunbaked fields of the farm would have given him an easier living, for he proved, in spite of the seeming laziness of his ambition, to be a prodigious worker. Finally Tyler, who had never felt the need of a partner, took the young man into his firm. Much of his work had to do with public utilities, part of it with electric light and power concerns, then just beginning their growth. It was thus that Charles A. Coffin, founder of the General Electric Company, came to know him, and when a vacancy occurred Coffin made him Vice President of the concern in charge of legal affairs.

HAS THE ART OF DIPLOMACY

Many were the difficult situations that arose in the conduct of business. Young took part in conferences where counsels were divided. He had a way of analyzing a situation and presenting it impersonally which won to compromise men of all shades of opinion. There was a sharp disagreement among the executives of the General Electric, for instance, as to what the company should do in handling a new apparatus which had been offered. Intricate technical points were involved, and for a time the lawyer was not consulted, but when it seemed that no agreement could be reached he was called to take luncheon with a group of officials who had been quarreling about the thing for weeks. Three hours were spent over the table, and when the group returned, Young had mastered the technical points at issue, had resolved the difficulty into two main questions and had presented them so clearly and impartially that in a little while the matter was settled.

Nor was Young less successful in dealing with communities where electrical public utilities were functioning. Antagonism was more frequently manifested in those days because management was poorer. Young went on the theory that a public service corporation should serve the public, which did not seem so axiomatic then as it seems now; and that it should properly be held answerable if it failed of service. The electrical industry, he said, must depend on public confidence and support. To his subordinate he gave this rule:

"Read the newspapers and magazines. I want you to know what public opinion is. I want you not only to keep abreast of it, but to anticipate it."

Business allies and antagonists, workingmen and children alike sense something kindly, firm and understanding in Young's personality. He is a six-footer, loosely knit, and when he walks he stoops slightly, lounging along with his hands in his pockets; seated, he slides lazily down on the small of his back. He has a friendly, informal manner and yet a great deal of dignity. His voice and movements are deliberate. He seldom loses his temper and he has an unruffled, sometimes quizzical manner which more than once has made ill-temper seem silly to those who had yielded to it in arguments.

Young says now that he might never have left the farm if it had been possible in his youth to bring the world to his window by radio. He encouraged and promoted the broadcasting of church services (there is a deeply religious side to his character) because so often the farmer can't get to church. And he is still a farmer. He owns the old place at Van Hornesville and has broadened its acres to a thousand and he has a fine herd of thoroughbred cattle, bought mostly by himself at cattle sales. He does not play golf. The time can be better spent with his family, he thinks. And as for exercise, he got plenty of that in his youth. He has an unpretentious home, too, at Riverside, Conn., and in Winters he spends his week-ends there with his family. But when the weather permits and a hard problem confronts him he likes to get away to the farm and there perch on a rail fence to think it out. "I sit and think, but mostly sit," he says.

A trustee to this day of St. Lawrence University, Young still takes a deep interest in the college where he got his education. He is a director of various electrical corporations, banks and motor companies and of several bar associations. His success in smoothing out the quarrels between radio promoters probably was what first attracted attention to his equipment as an international mediator; but he took also to the consideration of the reparation problem a rich background of experience and learning, as well as an unusual character.
